BRITAIN DENIES PACT WITH U. S. ON DEBT STEPS

MacDonald Says Nobody Can Blame America for Its Policy.

CHURCHILL ASSAILED BY PRIME MINISTER

"Gentlemen's Agreement" May Be Bared Officially; England Consents.

London, July 12 (A.P.).—With an eye to the storm of criticism aroused in Washington, the British government today denied that the Lausanne agreement, which virtually ends German reparations, was based on any secret Anglo-American understanding that the United States would cut or cancel war debts.

This denial, which almost flatly contradicted a declaration made before the House of Commons yesterday by Chancellor of the Exchequer Neville Chamberlain, was followed by a statement from Prime Minister MacDonald that nobody could blame the United States for its war debt policy.

The prime minister, who was in fighting mood so far as his British critics were concerned, but was delicately diplomatic when touching on controversial issues affecting America, went before the House of Commons for the first time since the Lausanne conference to report on what happened there.

Hits Back at Churchill.

He hit back hard at criticism voiced yesterday by Winston Churchill, who said Europe had endangered her case with America by signing the "gentlemen's agreement," under which the lightening of Germany's reparations burden does not become effective unless the United States cuts war debts.

The "gentlemen's agreement," which has never been published officially, played such an important part in the debate following Mr. MacDonald's speech that finally steps were taken to make it available to every one.

The prime minister intervened in the debate to announce the government had no objection to publishing all the Lausanne documents, including the "gentlemen's agreement." A little later Sir John Simon, foreign secretary, announced that telegrams had been sent to the other powers represented at Lausanne asking them if they had any objection to the publication of supplementary agreements.

Believed Willing to Help.

In his report to the House the prime minister declared his belief that the United States was willing to cooperate in combating the world crisis.

"I, for one, believe there is no nation in the world more ready (than the United States) to lend a hand in straightening out the troubles with which we are surrounded," Mr. MacDonald said.

"I say that, although America never has given a pledge, so far as I know, or indicated in any way how she is prepared to meet us."

David Lloyd George made one of his infrequent appearances at Westminster to hear the MacDonald speech. He didn't like it.

The veteran Liberal leader insisted that the British public be fully informed of what took place at Lausanne. He wanted to know whether the "gentlemen's agreement" was a clear-cut link between the reparations settlement and adjustment of the American debt. He asked whether the Lausanne document would be null and void if the United States refused to revise.

Britain Would Cancel.

Responding to this speech, Mr. Chamberlain aroused the cheers of the house by restating the British policy thus:

"If all-around cancellation can be achieved, we shall cancel. If cancellation is not possible we must wait to see what America may propose to us before we can cancel the debts of our European allies."

This seemed to leave the situation just about where it was placed ten years ago in the famous Balfour note, which formulated the policy of making England's income on the score of the war equal to her outgo in war debt payments.

A government spokesman explained that in saying yesterday that the "gentlemen's agreement" had been reached after consultation with representatives of the United States, Mr. Chamberlain was talking in the heat of debate. His assertion, the spokesman added, had been taken as indicating much more than he had intended.

According to this authorized version, members of the British Lausanne delegation strolled about among the hills and along the lake front with United States representatives at Geneva, and in these informal contacts world problems were discussed solely as a matter of social intercourse.

U. S. Disclaims Part In Secret Debt Pact

Stimson and Borah Announce America Did Not Enter Negotiations, After Question Suddenly Comes Before Congress.

By HAROLD J. T. HORAN.

Partisan efforts to link the administration with an understanding on the debt agreements reached in Lausanne recently were effectively defeated yesterday after Secretary Stimson and Senator William E. Borah both categorically announced that the United States had no part either directly or indirectly in the negotiations.

Unexpected corroboration of the statements of the chairman of the foreign relations committee on behalf of the Secretary of State come from London.

The origin of the debate in Congress which has suddenly brought the entire subject of intergovernmental debts back into the picture, had its origin in the text of the "gentlemen's agreement." This document, called also the "unwritten agreement," purports to make the scaling down of German war debt annuities contingent on similar action by this Government with regard to war debts.

The British chancellor of the exchequer, Neville Chamberlain, chose to defend the Lausanne agreements on Monday in the House of Commons. At that time he referred to the "consultation" with representatives of the United States which took place in Lausanne before the reparations treaty was signed.

In the Senate here yesterday Senator Johnson excitedly railed at the implications in the Chamberlain statement.

"It is incredible that if there was a consultation it should have been concealed."

Senator Borah, who had recently left the chambers of the foreign relations committee, where Secretary of State Henry L. Stimson had appeared before the members, then declared:

"I have been authorized by the

STRANGE CAR LINKED IN REYNOLDS INQUIRY

Fingerprints Found in Home Held Not Those of Anyone at Death-Night Party.

(Copyright, 1932, by United Press.)

Winston-Salem, July 12 (U.P.).—Fleeing in despondency and tears from the scene of her marital tragedy, Libby Holman Reynolds left behind her tonight the suspicion that some person as yet unidentified fired the shot that killed her husband, Smith Reynolds, last Wednesday morning. With her father, mother and sister she departed today for her Cincinnati home.

Two unexplained clews in a solution of one of the strangest "real-life" mysteries in the history of crime were in the hands of the authorities.

The first was testimony that a "strange" automobile was in the grounds of the Reynolds estate on the night of the shooting.

The second was proof that those bloody fingerprints which were not too blurred for identification corresponded to no fingerprint of any person known to have been a member of the gay house party that preceded the tragedy.

C. Raymond Kramer, Reynolds' aviation tutor, told authorities Reynolds had mentioned the presence of the unidentified automobile.

Evidence in the secret files of the coroner showed that the gun with which Reynolds was shot was not discovered until 6 a. m., several hours after the shooting, and that fingerprints in the room, in an adjoining room and in the bathroom do not correspond with the fingerprints of Miss Holman or of any of her known companions.

A further problem was offered in the fact that a bullet hole has been discovered in a screen on the porch adjoining the bed chamber of Miss Holman, not easily in range of the supposed position of young Reynolds as described during the inquest.

The alleged fact that the gun was not found for four hours after the shooting was particularly puzzling. One source said the testimony showed it was found immediately in front of

Fire in Penitentiary Follows Food Protest

Joliet, Ill., July 12 (A.P.).—Fire which broke out in the furniture factory of the new Stateville Penitentiary late today was extinguished after doing damage estimated at less than $10,000.

The blaze followed a mild demonstration of convicts displeased with food served them earlier in the day, and a number of the participants were placed in solitary confinement while an effort was made to determine whether the fire was of incendiary origin.

BRAZILIAN REVOLT'S WIDE SCOPE BARED

Revolution Successful in Sao Paulo Is Aimed at Whole Nation.

Sao Paulo, Brazil, July 12 (A.P.).—With the collapse of federal authority in the State of Sao Paulo, the revolutionary movement inaugurated Sunday was revealed today as an attempt to seize control of the entire nation, rather than to set up a separatist state government.

Pedro de Toledo, who resigned as federal governor of Sao Paulo State and was immediately installed as head of the revolutionary government, declared that the States of Rio Grande do Sul and Minas Geraes had adhered to the movement.

The sole purpose of the revolt, he asserted, was to restore constitutionality to Brazil.

Meanwhile action in the field continued. Revolutionary headquarters announced that the vanguard of the antigovernment forces had captured a munitions factory at Piquete, 120 miles northeast of Sao Paulo and halfway to Rio de Janeiro.

Rio de Janeiro, July 12 (A.P.).—Peace overtures were made to rebels holding the State of Sao Paulo tonight as President Getulio Vargas requisitioned war materials in seven states.

Gen. Francisco Flores da Cunha, interventor (governor) of Rio Grande do Sul, with other leaders sent a radio message to Francisco Morato and Altino Arantes, leaders of the Paulist "Frente Unica" party, proposing an armistice to permit peace negotiations, said a dispatch from Porto Alegre.

Although Rio Grande do Sul was officially reported quiet, private dispatches said the rebels had captured three towns in that state.

Disease Threatens 1,000 Flood Victims

Relief Groups Hampered by Mud in Feeding Refugees in West Virginia.

Charleston, W. Va., July 12 (A.P.). Upward of 1,000 men, women and children are fighting disease and starvation tonight in the water-soaked valleys of Paint and Armstrong creeks, where eighteen persons lost their lives.

Although relief organizations crawled foot by foot up creek beds that yesterday were filled with roaring water, many of the homeless had not been reached by nightfall.

Those who received food, clothing and bedding still were menaced by disease lurking in mud-polluted wells and streams. Pure drinking water scarcely was to be found on either creek. Although many refugees were inoculated against typhoid fever and their wells treated, there were more who lacked the benefit of any precautions.

St. Lawrence Treaty Draft Reported to Be Completed

Baltimore, July 12 (A.P.).—The Baltimore Sun says the first rought draft of a treaty between the United States and Canada for development of the St. Lawrence River to provide a waterway from Duluth to the sea, has been completed and approved by President Hoover. The draft, according to the paper, followed five days of negotiations conducted over the protests of Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt of New York.

The work was finished today after long-distance telephone calls, the paper said, to Ottawa, and after conferences between President Hoover, Secretary of State Stimson, James G. Rogers, Assistant Secretary, and John Hickerson, Canadian expert of the State Department.

The dispatch said the total cost of the waterway is to be between $800,000,000 and $900,000,000, according to the treaty draft and of this it is agreed that Canada shall have a $120,000,000 credit for the expense of digging the Welland Canal, plus about $90,000,000 for improvements along the St. Lawrence between Montreal and the sea.

700 VETERANS MAKE BEDS ON CAPITOL LAWN

Win Right to Sleep on Grass; First Ordered to Sidewalks.

AID TO SOLDIERS NOW IN ACTUAL WANT AIM

Petitions Presented to Curtis and Garner; Patman Will Back Move Today.

Temporary permission to sleep on the lawns of the Capitol was given last midnight by Superintendent of Police Pelham D. Glassford to 700 veterans, who say they will camp there until Congress adjourns or until veterans' relief legislation is passed.

Gen. Glassford asked Roy W. Robertson, leader of the outfit, to persuade his men to go to their billets, but he informed the police head that his men were unwilling to leave the Capitol Grounds.

Earlier, after he had talked with Inspector L. I. H. Edwards, Robertson had ordered his men from the lawn. Gen. Glassford's permission countermanded an order to the men given by Inspector Albert J. Headley that they should not sleep on the lawns.

Attract Many Sightseers.

Approximately 10,000 automobiles, loaded with sightseers, passed through the Capitol grounds to witness the encampment of the strange army, which has decided to occupy the Capitol grounds.

Those who sprawled out on the lawns and pavements of the Capitol are dubbed "insurgents" by the general staff of the Bonus Expeditionary Forces, because of their refusal to affiliate with them.

Agitators moved through the ranks distributing literature printed by Communists. The veterans, however, promptly expelled the distributors from the Capitol grounds with a warning "not to come back or else."

May Revoke Permission.

Gen. Glassford made it clear to Robertson that he may have to revoke the permission today, if too many of the veterans should congregate on the grounds.

The group that is now at the Capitol is the one which marched to Congress yesterday and presented a petition to Vice President Curtis and left another at the office of Speaker Garner asking payment of the bonus to those veterans who are certified to be unemployed.

Unlike the other veterans, who say they will stay until the bonus is paid, this group says it will stay until Congress adjourns and will go home with the legislators and try to defeat the bonus enemies at the polls.

As Gen. Glassford left the grounds, he made another plea to the men to leave, but it went unheeded. "Any time you want the men to get off the grass, let me know, general," said

Oath Bill Beaten In Dail Eireann

Dishonesty Is Charged by De Valera; Turmoil Is Result.

Dublin, Irish Free State, July 12 (A.P.).—Hotheads clashed in the Dail Eireann tonight when, by a vote of 71 to 61, it refused to approve the Irish Free State government's bill to abolish the oath of allegiance to the British crown as amended by the Senate.

As a result, the bill will be held up for eighteen months unless a general election takes place in the Free State in the meantime. Turmoil was created, in which the galleries joined volubly, when President Eamon De Valera charged the opposition with dishonesty.

Meanwhile, from London the British government announced special Irish import duties effective Friday, levying a 20 per cent ad valorem tariff on live stock, poultry, game, butter, eggs, cream, bacon and pork, which are the principal Irish exports to Great Britain.

Norway Will Occupy New Greenland Tract

Oslo, Norway, July 12 (A.P.).—The government decided today to occupy a strip of southeastern Greenland 2 miles wide between latitudes 60 degrees 30 minutes and 60 degrees 40 minutes.

Copenhagen, Denmark, July 12 (A.P.).—Norway's decision to occupy another stretch of eastern Greenland, which has been claimed for years by Denmark, drew criticism from Premier Theodore Stauning, who asserted it was an encroachment similar to the Norwegian occupation in 1931 of that section of Greenland lying between latitudes 75 degrees 40 minutes and 71 degrees 30 minutes.

BUREAU FUND RESTORING IN SENATE FAILS

Deficiency Bills Seen as Only Alternative to Work Reduction.

5 DEPARTMENTS HIT HARDEST BY SLASH

Extended Furloughs or Broad Cuts in Personnel Now Seem Necessary.

By ROBERT C. ALBRIGHT.

Deficiency appropriations for five Government departments hard hit by Senate pruning yesterday loomed as the sole means of avoiding extended furloughs in their domain, or broad cuts in personnel.

Collapse yesterday of a movement to restore appropriations for all five to original House figures left the deficiency route the only relief alternative.

It remains a forlorn alternative at best, in view of the stand taken by Senator Wesley L. Jones (Republican), Washington, chairman of the Senate appropriations committee.

Nips Restoration Move.

Senator Jones nipped in the bud the restoration movement of Senator Royal S. Copeland (Democrat), New York, then dashed cold water on deficiency hopes. He said he is not sympathetic with advocates of this last recourse.

Departments hard hit are State, Justice, Commerce, Labor and Interior, the only agencies forced to take the 10 per cent cuts under House appropriations originally ordered by the Senate but dropped in the other appropriation bills.

Representative Joseph W. Byrns (Democrat), of Tennessee, chairman of the House appropriations committee, yesterday conceded the unequal cuts in departmental appropriations "are not fair." He looks upon it, however, as the "Senate's mistake," for which the House has no initiative responsibility. If the Senate has done an injustice, he said, it is up to the Senate to correct it.

Cites House Sympathy.

"Should the Senate favorably consider the Copeland resolution it would receive sympathetic consideration over here," he said. "But the Senate having cut under the House appropriations, it is not up to the House to submit them again."

He said he thought all five departments would be justified in making deficiency estimates; that they should be given preference over departments more adequately provided for in the current appropriations.

This is not the only point at which the chairman of the House appropriations committee is sharply at variance with the Senate appropriations chairman.

Senator Jones said he thought the Man Lives After Shot Passes Through Heart

Denver, July 12 (A.P.).—Amazed physicians tonight worked over A. J. Chester, jr., 24, son of a Dallas, Tex., railroad man, who shot himself through the heart here this morning. Ten hours after a bullet from a .22-caliber rifle passed completely through the organ the youth was still alive. Although hoping to save his life, physicians said they expected death momentarily.

Chester recently suffered a nervous breakdown. Police reported he shot himself while seated in an automobile at the city's busiest street intersection.

NEW RELIEF MEASURE IS PASSED BY SENATE; GOES TO HOUSE TODAY

Home Loan Bank Bill Approved by Senate

Filibuster by Couzens Stopped to Speed Relief Action; $1,800,000,000 Credit Seen in Final Hoover Recovery Point.

The last major project in President Hoover's twelve-point program for economic rehabilitation was put in the final stages of the legislative mill yesterday when the Senate passed the home loan banking bill, establishing a new national system of mortgage discount banks to stimulate home building and modernize the financing of dwelling loans.

The bill contemplates the most important development in national banking policy since establishment of the Federal Reserve System and the Farm Loan Banks.

A four-hour filibuster against the measure by Senator Couzens, of Michigan, collapsed ingloriously late yesterday afternoon when leaders on both sides in the Senate agreed to press for final action on the measure in order that the way might be cleared for prompt consideration of the revised emergency relief bill which was offered immediately by Senator Wagner, of New York.

When the Couzens filibuster broke, the Senate quickly revoked its action on the Couzens substitute, which would have established the home loan machinery as a temporary function of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation. In rapid order it then rejected half a dozen sniping amendments and sent the bill to conference with the House.

The major problem for the conference is the Borah amendment, which would provide approximately $900,000,000 in currency inflation through an authorization making Government bonds eligible as backing for old-style national bank notes. There was every indication last night that this amendment would be stricken in conference. Senators Norbeck, Watson

DRY LEADERS START SECRET TALKS HERE

(Copyright, 1932, United Press.)

Dry organization leaders began a series of secret strategy conferences here last night for a crucial "back-to-the-wall" fight in the coming campaign.

They predicted the eighteenth amendment and the Volstead act will withstand all attacks despite the growth of "wet" sentiment in both parties and the increasing, but thus far unsuccessful, agitation in Congress for a change.

There were indications as the meetings started that organized drys would openly throw their support behind President Hoover. This would be based on the Chief Executive's "record" and the 100 per cent "wet" stand of his Democratic opponent, Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt of New York, as well as the obvious fact that the platform on which Mr. Hoover will stand for reelection declares only for resubmission, while Democrats and their candidate came out flatly for repeal and modification of the Volstead act.

Whether the dry organizations will

Bridge Blast and Gun Fights Mark Ohio Strike

Columbus, Ohio, July 12 (A.P.).—Gun battles, a bridge dynamiting, a fire and a near riot marked developments in the five-month-old Ohio coal strike.

One man was killed in a gun battle at Chauncey, Athens County, a New York Central bridge near the same village was dynamited, and the Kanawha & Michigan Railroad bridge at Albany, Athens County was fired early today in what authorities said was an attempt by striking miners to intimidate workers.

SANDERS OUTLINES CAMPAIGN POLICIES

President to Be Relieved of Addresses; 15 Committee Members Named.

Chicago, July 12 (A.P.).—Contrary to 1928, the brunt of the Republican campaign direction this year will be borne by the national committee, President Hoover will be freed of all details save those of his addresses.

This was the outline drafted today by Everett Sanders, chairman of the national committee, after a White House visit.

"We will follow closely," Sanders said, "the campaign of 1924. In 1928 Hoover was not President and was able, and did, devote all his time to managing his own campaign. He actively directed the work in the national headquarters in Washington.

"Now we must do most of this work for him. The national committee must leave him as free as possible to attend to the duties of the Presidency."

With this directorship partially divorced, the national headquarters has been more conveniently centered in Chicago.

To aid Sanders and other officers of the national committee, fifteen members were named as an executive committee. While named primarily for the campaign, these committeemen and committeewomen will serve for the next four years.

The fifteen are:

Mrs. Grace Burlingham, Missouri; Mark L. Requa, California; George A. Ball, Indiana; Mrs. Manley L. Fossen, Minnesota; Mrs. Guy P. Gannett, Maine; Lawrence Phipps, Colorado; Charles D. Hilles, New York; Earle S. Kinsley, Vermont; H. E. Spangler, Iowa; Walter F. Brown, Ohio; David W. Mulvane, Kansas; Mrs. Worthington Scranton, Pennsylvania; John Richardson, Massachusetts; R. B. Creager, Texas, and Mrs. Bertha Baur, Illinois.

Under Sanders' outline of organization work, the State chairmen will serve as the keystones.

These chairmen, who will frequently visit the Chicago headquarters during the coming months, will supervise the campaign in their States. The national committee members will serve as aids between them and Sanders.

The national chairman was silent on President Hoover's activities, except to say the speech of acceptance would probably be made about the same day as last year, early in August.

"We had to meet a different condition this year," Sanders said. "The speech of acceptance of the Democratic nominee was made at once. And we had to meet this."

And this, Sanders said, was the reason for last night's address of Ogden L. Mills, Secretary of the Treasury.

War Supply Measure Finally Passes House

(Associated Press.)

After receding on its original plan to eliminate 2,000 Regular Army officers, the House yesterday acted finally on the $390,000,000 War Department supply bill.

Senate approval of minor amendments will send the long deadlocked measure, last of the regular appropriation bills, to the President.

Amelia Earhart Off to Set Nonstop Coast-Coast Mark

Leaves Los Angeles Alone for Newark in Same Plane Which Took Her to Ireland, Determined to Span Continent in 17 Hours.

Los Angeles, July 12 (A.P.).—Amelia Earhart lifted her fast, red monoplane from the municipal airport at 1:11:25 p. m. today, bound for Newark, N. J., in an attempt to clip more than an hour from the nonstop record set three years ago by Capt. Frank Hawks.

The slender young woman, flying the same Lockheed-Vega monoplane in which she conquered the Atlantic a few weeks ago, expected to land in Newark in about seventeen hours. The fastest previous nonstop flight was made by Capt. Hawks in 1929 in 18 hours 21 minutes 59 seconds.

A forecast of good weather was spread across the 2,465-mile course, an all-important factor in the attainment of success. Miss Earhart, although carrying 420 gallons of fuel, a capacity supply, had none too great a margin of gasoline for the big motor of her ship.

Flying alone she also sought to establish the first nonstop crossing of the United States by a woman flier.

Miss Earhart carried some sandwiches, oranges, a flask of tomato juice and a bottle of water beside her in the cockpit. A few minutes before she took off, an anxious spectator inquired if she really intended to fly to New York alone.

"Yes, I do," she said with a smile. "I need that extra weight for gasoline rather than somebody to talk to."

Miss Earhart flew here several days ago from New York, with her husband, George Palmer Putnam, and his son, making the trip by easy stages.

With favorable air conditions, she could expect, weather observers said, a tail wind which would boost her speed and insure sufficient gasoline to reach the Eastern seaboard. The plane has a top speed of 200 miles an hour.

Night Session Is Swift To Act

BILL PERMITS STATES LOANS

May Be Forwarded To President Tonight

By LAWRENCE SULLIVAN.

Adjournment of Congress at the end of the week became almost a certainty yesterday as both houses pressed forward vigorously in independent efforts to perfect a new $2,000,000,000 emergency relief bill for final legislative action today or tomorrow.

In a night session which was astonishing for the swift and decisive action of its nonpartisan coalition, the Senate passed the new Wagner relief bill as a substitute for the $136,000,000 road construction bill passed weeks ago by the House. In this form the measure, now lacking the Garner plan for direct small loans from the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, goes to the House this morning.

Should the Senate form be approved by the House the relief bill may be sent to President Hoover for his signature tonight. If, on the other hand, the House decid s to go through with its own program, it will take up the new bill as perfected yesterday by the ways and means committee and pass it under a special rule limiting debate to 40 minutes and forbidding amendments from the floor. In this case, a conference between the two Houses would be necessary and final action probably would be delayed until tomorrow.

Amendments Are Rejected.

So determined were Senate leaders to remain with the relief problem until final action last night that a motion to recess at 7 o'clock was overwhelmingly rejected on a roll call. An hour and a half later the bill had been passed and started on its way back to the House.

A score of amendments were rejected without debate and no change was made in any major feature of the bill as outlined by President Hoover in his veto message Monday.

As approved in the Senate, the new measure authorizes Reconstruction Finance Corporation loans to the extent of $300,000,000 to States for emergency relief in cases where local resources are exhausted. Where governors borrow for the relief of cities or other minor political subdivision, the governor's certificate of need shall be accompanied by a similar affidavit from the mayor or comparable municipal authority. Such loans shall bear interest at the rate of 3 per cent a year. Every application shall be subject to the approval of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation board.

Increase in Resources.

The second principal section of the new bill increases the potential lending resources of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation from the present $2,000,000,000 to $3,800,000,000 and authorizes a long list of additional types of loans calculated to stimulate immediate employment on public work and engineering projects of semipublic nature.

All loans in this category, however, are subject to the broad general provision that they shall be self-liquidating. The bill defines a project as self-liquidating "if the construction

FURLOUGHED WIVES FAVORED BY RULING

Need Not Be Let Out When Time Ends, McCarl Rules; May Be Extended.

Comptroller General McCarl ruled yesterday that a wife who had been on furlough for six months due to illness need not be dismissed, but can be furloughed further.

The decision is expected to be a boon to married persons in the Government service, as it indicated administrative heads will be allowed to use the so-called administrative furlough to prevent dismissal of married people.

Comptroller McCarl rendered his ruling to Representative William H. Sutphin, of New Jersey, who identified the married woman merely as "the wife of an enlisted man of the Army or Navy, who has been on furlough the past six months due to ill health."

Representative Sutphin asked the Comptroller if this woman would be entitled to resume her duties at the expiration of her six months' furlough, or whether she would be prohibited from so doing by the married persons provision of the economy act.

In giving the decision, Comptroller McCarl said: "The provisions of this section of the statue would not preclude the married woman in question from resuming her duties upon the expiration of her present furlough; but, of course, it would be within the authority and discretion of the head of the department or establishment in which she is employed to extend her furlough or to give her another furlough, pursuant to section 216 of said act, providing for administrative furloughs when necessary in order to keep within the appropriations made for the fiscal year 1933.

Legion Blames Hoover For Disability Payment

Indianapolis, July 12 (A.P.).—The American Legion today stated it was not responsible for the law providing nonservice disability allowance for veterans and placed the responsibility on President Hoover's administration. The Legion national headquarters here issued a statement to this effect prepared by the organization's national legislative committee at Washington.

"The law providing the disability allowance was incorporated in the act of July 3, 1930," the statement said. "This measure was jammed through Congress in the closing days of the session by the administration after the President had vetoed an increase in compensation payments advocated by the Legion."

come out openly for President Hoover may be determined at the conferences. They may wait until his acceptance speech in August before taking a position. They may not openly indorse the President, but content themselves with informing their supporters of the positions of the parties, leaving to the rank and file the deduction as to how to vote.

Their major function in this campaign will be to elect dry officials "from President to constable" in their effort to protect the law, according to Dr. F. Scott McBride, legislative superintendent of the Antisaloon League, in whose office the six members of the league's administrative board met last night. Among those present was Bishop James Cannon, Jr. Another meeting will be held tonight.

They are preliminary to the meeting of the so-called "prohibition board of strategy," embracing leaders of all dry organizations, which will be held here tomorrow and Friday. Others participating in the league meeting were Bishop Ernest G. Richardson, Chicago, president of the league; Dr. Ernest H. Cherrington, J. A. White, Columbus, Ohio, lawyer, and Dr. M. P. Boynton, Chicago.

MOVE TO RESTORE BUREAU FUNDS BEATEN IN SENATE

to the five slighted branches of Government, might be seen in the light of new appropriations, and as such should not originate in the Senate.

Byrns' View Differs.

While not necessarily subscribing to the view that appropriations should originate in the House, he held it a controversial question which should not be agitated this late in the session.

Representative Byrns, however, does not regard the Copeland resolution as original legislation.

The upshot of it all is that there will be no action on the resolution at this session, and Federal workers must trust to the administrative genius of the several heads of the five departments to touch them as lightly as possible.

Some workers inevitably must go. Others may be taken care of through the "administrative furlough"—meaning they must take indefinite payless leave in addition to the compulsory one-month economy furlough.

Humane department heads may take care of still others through application of a provision in the economy act enabling them to transfer up to 12 per cent of any appropriation. Items not providing for personnel could thus be trimmed in employes' favor.

Five-Day Week Watched.

As a last resort, it is up to these same chiefs how far they are willing to obligate themselves by way of deficiency.

Clerks in the Postoffice, Treasury, Agriculture, Navy and War Departments, less likely to be affected by "administrative furloughs" because less severely hit by funds curtailments, are evincing more interest in the probable outcome of the council of personnel administration's five-day week recommendations.

President Hoover last night had not made up his mind how generally the five-day week "principle" is to be applied. The Treasury Department yesterday was seen as a new obstacle in the path of its universal application. Secretary of the Treasury Mills was represented as favoring "vacation without pay" as opposed to the short week basis. He was said to be of the opinion the Treasury could not effectively operate under such a system.

Married Worker Ruling.

One new ruling on the economy act was forthcoming yesterday from Comptroller General J. R. McCarl. Although having to do with the clause requiring discharge of husband or wife, where both are employed by the Government, it covered only one isolated case.

The Comptroller held that a wife who had been on furlough for six months due to ill health, need not be dismissed, but could be furloughed further. It was interpreted in some quarters as giving department heads the right to invoke indeterminate furloughs instead of dismissal for married workers.

The Bingham resolution for repeal of the married worker clause, and the Shipstead resolution exempting Government Printing Office employes from the cancellation of all earned leave in 1933, still are lying on the Senate table. Senator Shipstead (Republican), Minnesota, may seek action on the latter today.

AMERICA DISCLAIMS PART IN SECRET DEBT AGREEMENT

Copeland resolution, making amends Secretary of State to repeat the substance of the conversation I have just had with him. The Secretary stated to me explicitly that there had never been any conversation on the part of this Government with the representatives of foreign governments touching the settlement at Lausanne; that we were not consulted and in no way advised with reference to what is called the 'gentlemen's agreement;' that the position of the Government has been, throughout the negotiations which had been going on between the governments in Europe, that our Government regarded the debts and the question of reparations as separate propositions, that we neither by communications nor through representatives who are now in Europe representing this Government at other conferences had anything to do whatsoever with reference to the reparations settlement, and in no wise is this Government bound by any supposed gentlemen's agreement either expressedly or impliedly."

Confers at Capitol.

Secretary Stimson had been at his home in Woodley until shortly before the Cabinet meeting yesterday, studying the last reports on the debt imbroglio. He hurried to the White House and after the meeting was over was whisked to the Capitol, where he remained with the foreign relations members of the Senate.

He paused long enough in discussing the London reports of the debt gareement with newspapermen to say:

"There is absolutely no truth in that. Our representatives were not approached and there was no understanding with other governments on that question. The American policy is unchanged." Then before he left he turned around and with an emphasis which was more characteristic of the soldier than of the statesman, he said:

"I said that yesterday and I reiterate it now."

After Senator Borah had made public the Stimson manifesto, Senator Johnson rumbled on, accepting with reluctance the statement of the Secretary of State. He shouted:

"It's time that there should be some sort of warning by those who think that this Government belongs to one people—the American people. I cry out against one thing more than anything else. I cry out against secrecy—secrecy about a thing that concerns every taxpayer. It ought not to be tolerated.

"The $270,000,000 about to become due next December 15 will be met by another moratorium and the $270,000,000 added to the burden on the backs of the American taxpayer—a thing that this Congress ought not to allow."

Senator McKellar (Democrat), of Tennessee, still guarded some lurking doubt about the sanctity of America's lien on Europe. He introduced a resolution calling upon the administration to tell the Senate if there was any truth in the reports which Secretary Stimson had previously denied.

Reed Blocks Consideration.

Senator David A. Reed (Republican), of Pennsylvania, blocked consideration of this resolution immediately by declaring:

"I feel as strongly as the senator from Tennessee against reductions or cancellations. The surest way to bring about any reductions or cancellation is to keep talking about it. Let's accept it as settled that the war debts will be paid. With only a fraction of what is being spent in Europe for excessive armaments the debts could be paid."

Since the announcement of the signing of the Lausanne agreement, the State Department has received no indication from any of the European governments involved of any reopening of the debt problems. The French government has definitely indicated its intention of holding in abeyance any action on the intergovernmental debts util after the American presidential elections. It is expected that the same course will be followed by Great Britain, Italy and Belgium.

BALL AND DUNCAN FACE TRIAL SOON

Former Officials' Cases Set for August 15 and 22; Hallock's Delayed.

ARLINGTON COUNTY BUREAU OF THE POST.
Tel. Clar. 509. Clarendon, Va.

Cases of two former Arlington County officials, who are charged with grand larceny of public funds, were set for trial this term of Circuit Court when they were arraigned yesterday before Judge Walter T. McCarthy. The third former official gained a continuance until the October term of court.

All efforts of defense attorneys for E. Wade Ball, former county treasurer, and William H. Duncan, former county clerk, to gain delays in the hearing of their cases were overruled by Judge McCarthy.

Case Set for August 15.

The case of Ball, who is accused of embezzlement of State funds totaling $24,454, was set for August 15, and that of Duncan, charged with embezzlement of $7,815, for August 22. Both of the defendants pleaded not guilty when they were arraigned yesterday.

F. J. Hallock, former clerk to the County School Board, will face the court at the October term, a continuance having been granted at the request of his attorney.

Defense attorneys for Ball and Duncan based their fight for delay on the ground that it was necessary to have a complete report of the result of the audit of their books to plan an adequate defense.

Judge McCarthy promptly overruled their motions, declaring the dates set for the trial of the two men would give the defense ample time to prepare their cases.

Plea for Continuance.

In his plea for a continuance, Attorney Leo P. Harlow, associated with Attorney Amos C. Crounse as counsel for Duncan, declared if the reported statement of a member of the county board to the effect that the total alleged shortage would exceed $600,000 was correct, it would be unfair to force the defense to an early trial, since before it had attempted to gain this information and had failed.

"We have been advised that the audit of Duncan's accounts has been finished and that we would be furnished with a copy of the report. That was many days ago. So far we have not seen that report," he said.

Winchester Gun Battle Suspects Are Arrested

Special to The Washington Post.

Martinsburg, W. Va., July 12.—Three fugitives, John Russell, Manuel Peters and Daniel Prenny, all of Newport, R. I., sought for participation in the armed robbery of the postoffice-store at Moorefield Junction, Hamshire County, early one day last week, are under arrest in Effingham, Ill., nd will be returned to Hamshire County to face trial, it was learned here today through a postal inspector who helped trail the men.

The three fugitives were trailed first to Winchester, Va. They are believed to be the men who blew a safe there, but escaped after a running gun fight with police.

Prisoners' Autos Give Wardens Free Wheeling

By JOHN J. DALY

GOVERNMENT investigators, sifting charges that the Nation's leading gangsters enjoy special courtesies while in jail, found one instance that a warden used the expensive automobile of an underworld chieftain.

Some of the finest cars manufactured are owned by the overlords of gangdom now doing time in Uncle Sam's retreats.

It would seem that nothing would be more natural than for one of the wardens to borrow a motor that otherwise might be idling.

"Go down to cell Number 8 and tell Prisoner No. 999 I'm taking his sedan this morning," the warden says to a trusty.

• • • •

"I'M sorry," the trusty replies, "but the deputy warden beat you to it. Why not get No. 680's streamline roadster?"

"How many of the boys have limousines?" the warden parries, determined to use a large car.

The trusty counts on his fingers. "Let's see—No. 890 has two, though one is a last year's model. No. 426 has a seven-passenger and an armored car——"

"I don't need an armored car just to go to town," the warden complains.

"No, sir. What you want is a town car."

"Who has one?"

"No. 516 has just what you need—a landau."

"That's an idea," smiles the warden, rubbing his hands together, delighted. "I haven't ridden in a landau since they released No. 199."

"There's a good chauffeur goes with the landeau," the trusty remarks, starting for the garage.

"Tell me," the warden demands, halting the trusty, "who is that visitor in the sheriff's office?"

"That's one of the creditors of No. 422——"

"A creditor? What's he want?

"He's a politician, a dealer in high-powered cars. He wants to speak to No. 422 about the payments due on two automobiles."

"So 422 has two automobiles?"

• • • •

"NO, he's got four—a racer, a coupe, a country car and an armored tractor—for business purposes."

"What does the sheriff say about the collector?"

"He says for you to talk to the man."

"All right," grumbles the warden, "show him in."

"So," sneers the warden, "you've come to collect?"

"And how!" sputters the big sportsman, flicking cigar ashes on the rug.

Preliminaries over, the warden permits the politician to visit No. 422.

"And by the way," says the warden, "if that prisoner orders a new car, see that it has free-wheeling."

"That's what you've been getting, isn't it?" the politician jeers, shifting his cigar.

"What?"

"Free wheeling."

And the trusty, who overhears the jibe, laughs in his sleeve.

DEAD FILL STREETS IN TRUJILLO REVOLT

Drunken Mobs Murder and Loot; Rebels Are Like Barbaric Vandals.

Lima, Peru, July 12 (A.P.).—Drunken mobs coursed through the streets of Trujillo, looting and murdering during the period when the city was in control of the rebels, dispatches reaching here today from the north declared.

Trujillo was seized Friday and was recaptured by loyal troops yesterday.

Two persons who came down by airplane said the streets were filled with bodies and there was evidence of looting and burning.

"Infuriated drunken crowds, excited by the inciting speeches of their chieftains, ransacked and murdered like the vandal barbarians of past ages," said the newspaper El Comercio.

When a detachment of the Seventh Infantry, which was loyal to the government, neared Trujillo they were ambushed by a large force of rebels and there was several hours' of fighting with heavy losses on both sides.

Red Cross workers were busy today trying to clear away the signs of one of the bitterest battles in the history of Peruvian revolts. The government used land, sea and air forces to recapture the city.

VETERANS SLEEP AT CAPITOL

Scene last night as bonus marchers from California were sleeping on the grass in the shadow of the Capitol dome.

700 VETERANS ARE AT CAPITOL TO WAIT GRANTING OF RELIEF

Robertson, "and I will have them off in five minutes. But they don't want to leave the grounds."

Representative Wright Patman (Democrat), Texas, the father of the bonus bill killed by Congress, plans to introduce a bill in the House today providing payment of the adjusted compensation to veterans in actual need.

Denied Use of Lawns.

After a conference between Capitol Architect David Lynn and Inspector Headley, the veterans' leaders were informed they would not be permitted to sleep on the lawns of the Capitol.

"We are going to stay on the Capitol grounds until something definite is done for us," said Robertson, of Los Angeles, who headed the committee which presented the petition to Vice President Curtis and to the secretary of Speaker Garner.

A plea for the men "to go home and carry on their fight at the polls," was made from the House steps by Representative William P. Connery (Democrat), of Massachusetts, one of the most persistent fighters for the full payment of the bonus.

His plea was answered with boos by the veterans. "I don't care if you boo me," he said. "I've always been with you and I still am; but I am telling you that more good can be done for your cause if you go home and fight at the polls." The men were silent.

Conferences Set.

Robertson is to confer at 10 o'clock this morning with Assistant Attorney General Nugent Dodds, to lay before him the evidence he has of "bogus" solicitors of food and money through the West and Southwest, who have been collecting under the guise of the bonus army and the American Red Cross.

A conference will be held in the House Office Building this morning on a legislative program and will be attended by Representatives Patman, Rankin and Connery, and the staff of the bonus army.

Robertson led his band of 450 men to the Capitol grounds, fully equipped with mess kits and blankets, with the intention of establishing a camp on the Capitol lawn. His plans went awry when the men were stopped by Superintendent of Police Glassford, who advised them to drop their kits and blankets as they entered the Capitol grounds. They complied with his request.

National headquarters of the Bonus Expeditionary Forces are "disinterested" in the Capitol demonstration and have sent the word around to their men not to congregate at the Capitol in order to avoid trouble. Commander in Chief Walter W. Walters returned to the Capital last night from a solicitation trip to New Jersey.

Petition Handed to Curtis.

After Robertson's contingent had placed their mess kits and blankets in a District truck, they trudged to the Senate wing, where a committee of five presented the petition to Vice President Curtis.

"I will gladly take your petition and present it to the Senate and have it referred to the proper committee," Vice President Curtis said. "But you have no bill to take care of what you ask in this petition, have you?"

"No, we have not," Robertson replied, explaining that his delegation arrived Sunday.

"Then I would suggest you get in touch with one of the members of the committee and ask that a bill carrying out your suggestions be introduced," the Vice President said.

Led By "Mr. Zero."

E. J. Munce, of Portland, Oreg., read the petition to the Vice President. Then Robertson said: "I am asking you and the Senate and House to look at it from a business standpoint, so the health of these men will be safeguarded and they can be kept from applying for their disability compensation." He explained that if their health should break down because of improper food they could apply for disability compensation, if it could be traced to service connection.

The men were led into the Vice President's office by Urban Ledoux, the famous "Mr. Zero," of New York, who says he has 32,000 pounds of beans for the veterans on the way from New York.

After leaving the Vice President's office they went to the office of Speaker Garner. The Speaker was engaged at the time, and Robertson gave the petition to Harry Sexton, the Speaker's secretary.

Patman Blames Senate.

The men congregated near the steps of the House wing, where they were addressed by Representative Patman, who told them the Senate had ended all hope for getting the full payment of the bonus at this session. "I plan to introduce a bill tomorrow," he said, "to provide payment for those certified to be unemployed."

There was a diminution in the number of applicants for transportation home under the bill passed by Congress last week. About 300 had applied up to 10 o'clock last night, making a total of 1,479 since the bill was passed. Veterans' Administration officials attribute the fall in applications to threats by other veterans against those wishing to go home.

Midnight tomorrow is the "zero hour" after which no further applications will be received.

Charlie Chaplin Protests $7,687,570 Assessment

Los Angeles, July 12 (A.P.).—Charlie Chaplin, listed on the county assessment rolls as the richest man in Hollywood, possessing taxable securities worth $7,687,570, filed a protest with the county board of supervisors today seeking to show his wealth was highly overrated.

His attorneys said the comedian's securities were worth but $1,657,316 and asked for a reassessment. A hearing was set for Thursday. Chaplin's attorneys asserted deputies from the county assessor's office had evaluated the actor's securities on "old prices instead of fixing them at current listings."

Minimize Rum Question, Roosevelt Friend Urges

(Associated Press.)

Daniel C. Roper, of Washington, one of the original supporters of Franklin D. Roosevelt for the Democratic presidential nomination, in a statement yesterday said the party's plank favoring prohibition repeal reflects the views of the majority "but certainly no such action could deny full liberty of thought and conscience to the minority."

"It is evident to me," he said, "that the temperance cause can be best served in this campaign by minimizing the agitation of the prohibition question and by the drys devoting their energies to the election of United States senators and representatives in accord with their views."

TEA HOUSE MURDER HEARING CONTINUED

State Will Call Six More Witnesses to Testify Against Pair Held.

John Wallace and James Zalenski are being held in connection with the Bladensburg tea house shooting last fall because one of them owned a car resembling the one used by the bandit gang and because the other is thought to have owned a gun found at the house, it was revealed yesterday at the preliminary hearing on charges of murder.

The hearing, held before Magistrate Horace Taylor, at Marlboro, was continued until July 21 after five witnesses had been heard. The State asked for the continuance in order to have six more witnesses present testify against the pair.

Wallace, who lives in Philadelphia, was questioned about the gun by Baltimore detectives a few days after the shooting. He denied owning it and was released, being told to come back in a few days. He disappeared, however, and was not found for several months, until he was arrested near Baltimore.

Zalenski, alias John Bun, a Baltimore resident, is thought to have owned a black sports roadster resembling the one which carried five men to the road house last fall. Police have located a car which they think was Zalenski's. Anna Lecklider, who was in the yard of the house at the time of the shooting, testified it looked like the one used in the attempted hold-up which ended in the death of one man and the wounding of five other persons.

Mexican Town Reported Leveled by Earthquake

Mexico City, July 12 (A.P.).—A dispatch from Autlan, Jalisco, tonight said that town was virtually leveled by an earthquake which drove the inhabitants out into a torrential rain last night. No casualties were mentioned. Autlan was badly damaged by two earthquakes in June and last night's shock, which occurred at 11 o'clock, was reported to have virtually finished the destruction.

Earthquake shocks, beginning at 2:30:23 p. m., Eastern Standard time, were registered yesterday on the seismograph at Georgetown University. The maximum impulse was recorded at 2:41. The disturbance was estimated to be 2,000 miles away.

STRANGE CAR LINKED IN REYNOLDS INQUIRY

the door of the room and should have been discovered easily in a previous search of the room allegedly made by a watchman. There are two possible explanations. One is that the searchers failed to see the gun. The other is more sinister—that it was brought there some time after the search was made.

The gun, a .32-caliber Mauser positively no fingerprints when it was examined by officers.

A few days before he died, Reynolds appended to the entry of his birth in the Reynolds family Bible a prophecy of his death.

That fact was among the strange incidents revealed tonight when the United Press obtained a copy of the lengthy transcript of the secret sessions of the inquest into his death.

Miss Blanche Yurka was being questioned on July 9, when the incident of the family Bible was revealed. She indicated an entry in the Bible. Solicitor J. Earle McMichael then read the entry as follows:

"Zachary Smith Reynolds was born on Sunday morning, November 30, 1911, at ten minutes after 5 o'clock." Added to that, in a different handwriting, were the words: "But he died of old age shortly thereafter."

Friends of the dead youth here say that on several occasions he had remarked that he was "born old" because his father was 70 years old at the time of his birth. This fact appears to have preyed on Smith's mind, and although no mention was made of it in the testimony before the coroner's jury, the youth's friends have recalled it since his death.

Miss Yurka had been a guest at the Reynolds home. She is a New York actress and close friend of the widow of young Reynolds.

The transcript devotes much space to attempting to reconstruct the picture in the room at the moment the body was found and develops so far unexplained reasons for wonderment. Without repeating the involved and lengthy testimony on the subject, the situation seems to have been:

Reynolds' body was found across the bed. To a person standing at the foot of the bed, facing the head, the gun was found on the left side of the bed. But the cartridge which had been ejected from the gun was on the right side of the bed. On the bed were bits of the steel jacket from the bullet. There was a hole in the screen of a porch to the left of the bed, 6 feet 2 inches from the floor. The bullet had entered the right side of Reynolds' head at the temple and had ranged downward, coming out a little below, and back of the left ear.

The coroner's jury and the authorities were unable to explain how the gun could be at the left of the bed, the cartridge at the right, the bits of the steel jacket on the bed, and the hole in the screen porch 6 feet 2 inches from the floor if Reynolds had shot himself while standing on the left side of the bed as described in the somewhat hazy testimony of Miss Holman.

THE RACKETEER'S SURRENDER.

("Racketeer Surrenders at Prison; Has Hard Time Getting In."—Headline.)

GUARD—You can't come in here.

Racketeer—Why not?

Guard—This is a State prison.

Racketeer—I know it. I violated a parole and I've just been by the newspapers that the courts have ordered me rearrested and returned.

Guard—Just the same, I'm pretty sure we couldn't let you in.

Racketeer—Why not?

Guard—The State is very strict about the people it lets into prison. They have to have references.

Racketeer—But I'm giving myself up.

Guard (scratching his head)—I'm pretty sure it would be a violation of all regulations to let you in. Once you get out you've gotta stay out, unless you've got influence.

* * * *

RACKETEER—Call the warden! He'll understand.

Guard (after summoning the warden)—Here's a feller wants to get into prison.

Warden (skeptically)—What for?

Guard—He says he violated a parole.

Warden (to the racketeer)—What's the matter with you fellers? When you get out of prison you're supposed to stay out.

Racketeer—I know but——

Warden—How can we keep our records straight if people are going out one minute and coming back the next? It gets us all mixed up. I just had to make an example of a couple of guys. They broke out a few days ago in a prison riot and just when we'd crossed their names off the books they come back again. Do you know what I did to 'em?

Racketeer (sadly)—No.

Warden—I threw 'em out and told 'em not to come back until I sent for 'em. I'm boss around here. We've gotta have discipline.

* * * *

RACKETEER (trying to explain)—The point is this, warden: The high courts have ordered me returned to prison. The cops are looking for me and I thought I would save time and trouble by giving myself up.

Warden—Who's running this prison? The cops or me?

Racketeer—You are, of course.

Warden—You bet I am. And what do you think the people would think of me if I started making it easy for lawbreakers to get in? It would violate all precedents. The courts have been building up a system for years that makes it almost impossible for a man to get into prison, and you have the nerve to want me to tear down that system just to please you!

* * * *

RACKETEER—But I'm a badly wanted man. I've a long record.

Warden—I'm sorry, but I can't play favorites. Do you know what would happen if I showed partiality in your case and let you into prison?

Racketeer—What?

Warden—I'd have to let anybody into prison who wanted to get in!

Racketeer (trying new tactics)—But, warden, I am innocent of the particular charge in this case.

Warden and Guard (in unison)—Innocent! Well, why didn't you say so in the first place? Come on in!

Ambassador Andrew W. Mellon was among the guests.

Paris, July 12 (A.P.).—The Egyptian princess, Samyak Mansour, said to be a relative of King Fuad, today shot and slightly wounded a real estate agent named Rene Leger, then tried unsuccessfully to commit suicide. HOME LOAN BANKING BILL GIVEN SENATE APPROVAL and Fletcher were named as the Senate conferees.

With the exception of the Borah amendment, the bill in its present form sets up a new Nation-wide banking agency essentially in conformity with the plan outlined by President Hoover in his original suggestion for the legislation last October.

Calls for Four Banks.

Instead of providing for eight to twelve banks, however, the Senate limited the number to four. This also may be corrected in conference, or neglected for the time being in favor of amendment at the later session of Congress.

Under the bill, the Treasury is authorized to subscribe up to $125,000,000 for the initial capital of the home loan banks, which would be under the general supervision of the newly created Home Loan Bank Board of three members, a governmental agency generally analagous to the Federal Reserve Board and the Federal Farm Loan Board.

The regional banks would have an initial minimum capital of $15,000,000, to be subscribed eventually by affiliated loans associations, banks, savings societies and similar organizations eligible to discount their mortgages at the regional banks. Under this plan the Treasury subscription to the intial operating capital ultimately would be repaid in full, as was the case in the establishment of the Federal Reserve System.

$1,800,000,000 Credit.

Sponsors of the measure estimated during the Senate debate that the new machinery would make available a maximum potential home-loan credit of about $1,800,000,000.

This fund would be available as an emergency measure to prevent unecessary depression foreclosures, and as a permanent fund to make home building loans more readily accessible to individuals of moderate means. Loans would be limited to $20,000.

Because it promises to place the entire home financing system on a sound credit basis and to outlaw the costly "country squire" system of home mortgages, the measure was vigorously resisted before both houses by representatives of some of the organized mortgage bankers of the country. The home-loan associations and commercial bankers generally, on the other hand, supported the measure.

Ownership Drop Shown.

"Figures show that home ownership in the United States is declining and that we are drifting into a Nation of tenants," the Senate banking and currency committee reported in recommending enactment of the legislation after hearings which extended over five months of the present session.

"The principal reason is an insufficient amount of low-cost, long-term installment mortgage money. The home loan banking bill is designed to place long-term funds in the hands of local institutions. Thus a debt-free home ownership can be created as borrowers reduce their debt from month to month.

"Our national credit structure needs, in addition to the Federal Reserve System and the Federal Farm Loan system, these home loan banking units to serve the small saver and the home buyer in the cities and small towns."

Latin-American Progress Seen Hinged on New Capital

Economic progress, rather than political struggles, will bring Latin America independence, Dr. J. F. Normano, of Harvard University, associate director of the Bureau for Economic Research in Latin America, asserted yesterday at the conference on Hispanic-American affairs at George Washington University.

Dr. Normano expressed belief that capital for South America should come from such countries as Sweden, Switzerland, Holland, Belgian. He declared that the twentieth century has already seen the beginning of industrialization in South America, describing this as "the key to her emancipation from foreign influence." This industrialization, he said, has been accompanied by a growth of protectionist feeling. In Brazil and Argentine the influence of the industrial class upon the tariff system has already reached considerable proportions.

Difficulties confronting the industrialization of the continent include scarcity of labor, lack of a broad transportation program and lack of capital.

Spanish America was viewed by Prof. Victor A. Belaude, of the University of San Marcos, Lima, Peru, now teaching at the University of Miami, as not only the greatest political experimental laboratory of the world, but also a great social experimental laboratory.

Pointing out that the continent is greatly handicapped by the difference of races, Prof. Belaude recommended assimilation of the Indian population. The present movement to exalt the Indian element, and the revolt of the native peoples, coincides with Communist propaganda, he asserted.

The Inca Empire, is the only regime that has carried out the plan of state socialism.

What Today Means

By MARY BLAKE

"CANCER."

IF July 13 is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 8 a. m. to 9:35 a. m., from 2 p. m. to 3:10 p. m. and from 9 p. m. to 10:40 p. m. The danger periods are from noon to 1:15 p. m. and from 6 p. m. to 7:45 p. m.

Indisposition of the mind, not body, is indicated through the astrological forecast for July 13. The world will appear ill, in spite of the very healthy conditions in which most phases of life will actually be found. Good opportunities will not look good, and therefore will be passed by to your future regret.

The child born on this July 13 will have a lazy, unambitious nature, but will have a merry, good-natured disposition. It will be a grand mixer, and may not be too wise in its choice of friends. It will be good at sports, and will have a sportsmanlike attitude toward life. It will be bound to fall on its feet.

Born on July 13, you are wise enough to realize that the greatest guns do not always make the biggest noise. You are a willing and good listener, a trait both choice and rare when most of the world wants to talk. You are like a wise old owl sitting on a tree, taking everything in and letting nothing out. You have a fund of knowledge which can be acquired in no other way. You also have a store of human sympathy, which is treasure of the most precious value. This does not mean that you can not be talker as well, and you are listened to with a great deal of respect. Into your ears are poured the sorrows of women or the disappointments of men, and your quiet understanding often acts as a reliable safety valve.

The joy of battle means more to you than the smile of success. You do not try to dodge all the donkey-work of life, and you are a real "digger." Strength of character, integrity and a decided mind make you an outstanding figure. You have a love of simple things, and a passionate love of beauty.

There will be no sham loyalties displayed in your family life for the sake of "respectability;" they will be the real thing. You will know what real love is, whether you ever possess the cause of your great passion or not.

Successful people born on July 13: James Aldrich, poet and editor of New York.

Nathan B. Forrest, Confederate general.

Uncle Sam's Home Hints

TOMATOES FOR NEXT WINTER.

(Department of Agriculture.)

No matter what other garden products you plan to put up in one way and another this summer, be sure you have plenty of tomatoes in every form—plain canned tomatoes, canned tomato juice, catsup, chili sauce, and perhaps some of the little pear-shaped yellow tomatoes as preserves.

Speaking of the many dishes in which we like the flavor of tomatoes, the United States Department of Agriculture says: "Quite as important as its flavor, color and general attractiveness are the food values of the tomato. Moreover, it is easy to can tomatoes and they are available all year at reasonable cost. The tomato is used as a vegetable, but it is really a fruit, and it serves the same purpose in the balanced diet as the citrus fruits. Oranges and grapefruit are highly recommended by nutritionists for their vitamin content. Tomatoes contain the same vitamins, and nowadays tomato juice is almost interchangeable with orange juice in the menu. It is even fed to little babies.

"Tomatoes supply several minerals essential to good growth and retain a goodly portion of vitamin C even when cooked or canned. They furnish also some vitamin A and B."

One excellent way to vary the use of tomatoes is the tomato juice "cocktail" which is now so popular. The juice may be served alone or it may be flavored in various ways, according to taste. To make tomato jelly for salad, gelatin is added to tomato juice with seasonings to taste. Here are directions for canning it:

Canned Tomato Juice.

Select firm, ripe tomatoes. Wash well and drain. Cut into sections. Add a small quantity of water to start cooking and simmer until softened. Stir occasionally to prevent burning. Put through a sieve fine enough to remove seeds. Bring to boiling and fill immediately into containers. Add one teaspoon salt to each quart of juice. Process quart and pint glass jars five minutes in a boiling water bath.

Catsup.

10 pounds red ripe tomatoes
3 onions
2 sweet red peppers
1 cup vinegar
¾ cup sugar
2 teaspoons paprika
1 teeaspoon ground mustard
1 teaspoon celery seed
1 tablespoon salt
1 teaspoon whole allspice
1 teaspoon whole cloves
3 pieces stick cinnamon, 2 inches long

Wash the vegetables, slice, and remove the seeds from the peppers. Cook the vegetables for about 30 minutes, then press through a fine sieve. Boil the pulp rapidly for about 30 minutes, or until somewhat thickened. Add the vinegar, sugar, paprika, mustard, celery seed and salt, and the spices, which have been tied in a small piece of cheese cloth. Boil the mixture until thickened and stir frequently. Fill hot sterilized bottles with the catsup, use new cork stoppers and dip the bottle tops into sealing wax to make an airtight seal. Store in a dark, cool place. This quantity of tomatoes will yield from one to two quarts of catsup.

Chili Sauce.

5 quarts skinned, chopped ripe tomatoes
2 cups chopped sweet red pepper
2 cups chopped green pepper
1½ cups chopped onions
3 tablespoons salt
1 cup sugar
3 cups vinegar
1 teaspoon cloves
1 teaspoon allspice
1 teaspoon cinnnamon

Combine the chopped vegetables, the salt and sugar, and simmer this mixture until it begins to thicken. Then add the vinegar and spices and cook the mixture until it becomes a thick sauce. Pour into hot sterilized bottles, use new corks and seal airtight with sealing wax. This recipe yields about three quarts of sauce.

Yellow Tomato Preserves.

8 pounds pear-shaped yellow tomatoes
2 lemons, thinly sliced, with seeds removed
1½ quarts water
6 pounds sugar
4 to 6 pieces ginger root

Wash the tomatoes and leave the skins on, or if desired scald the tomatoes and remove the skins. Cook the lemons for about 20 minutes in 1 pint of water. Boil together the remaining water and the sugar to make a sirup, and add the tomatoes, ginger root and the cooked lemon rind and liquid. Boil until the tomatoes are somewhat clear and the sirup thick. Remove the scum and pour the preserves into hot sterilized glass jars. Seal and store in a cool dry place.

CONCEDING A TRUMP TRICK.

LESS than two years ago, a team of four Americans journeyed to England to play a Contract Bridge match with the team representing one of England's strongest clubs. That match and one that followed as an aftermath resulted in a decisive victory for the American team. This fall one of the strongest teams in England will visit America and play a return match here, probably early in September. The outcome of that match is in doubt. Englishmen are great individualists, but they have learned since the first international match the value of systematic bidding, the one point in their game which was lacking at the time of our visit.

I recently received from Mr. Philip Brownrigg, of Magdalen College, Oxford, England, the hand below, which is an example of extremely accurate play in order to realize the Small Slam contract which had been undertaken.

South—Dealer.
Both sides vulnerable.

The Bidding:

South	West	North	East
2♣	Pass	2♡	Pass
3♣	Pass	3NT	Pass
6♣	Pass	Pass	Pass

The bidding is in accordance with sound principles. While North's hearts are possibly entirely valueless to South, six clubs are assured, even without cashing a trick in partner's hand, provided the club Queen can be picked up.

West opened the spade 10, and when Mr. Brownrigg took stock of the combined resources, the contract did not appear so easy. Entry to the Dummy could not be obtained, except on the bare chance of finding the club Queen a singleton, and thus, apparently, the contract must be defeated 1 trick if the Queen of clubs was not caught. Mr. Brownrigg, however, looked a little deeper than this surface reasoning and saw that he could make his contract sure by at once conceding a trump trick, provided both opponents had at least one trump, as, if the Queen won, then the club 8 in Dummy would permit entry to discard his losing diamond on the heart Ace. Therefore, Mr. Brownrigg at once laid down the club Knave. East won this trick with the Queen, but East and West were through.

Conceding the trump trick had assured the making of the contract.

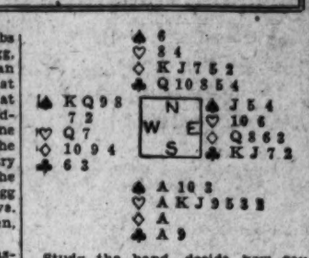
TODAY'S POINTER.

An accurate plan of play is the first requisite for success at Contract. This requires the immediate stock-taking as soon as the card is led by an adversary and the Dummy is placed on the table.

TOMORROW'S HAND.

The bidding and play of the hand printed below will be discussed tomorrow:

South—Dealer.
Both sides vulnerable.



Study the hand, decide how you would bid and play it, and then compare the results you obtain with those shown in tomorrow's article.

How to Be Beautiful

By ELSIE PIERCE

LASTING MAKE-UP DEPENDS UPON PROPER FOUNDATION.

AS I told you yesterday, summer make-up to be successful must be subtle and lasting. The subtle quality depends upon the shades of make-up used and the skill with which rouge and powder are blended. The lasting quality depends for its success largely upon the foundation. Many women make the mistake of powdering very heavily during the summer in order to offset shine and perspiration. The perspiration and oil glands are particularly active during the summer months. And as a result if powder is heavily applied, the oil or perspiration forced through the tiny pore openings soon mixes with the powder and causes a pasty mass.

Excessive shine, perspiration and disappearing make-up are three of summer's most common beauty plaints. Yet all three can easily be avoided if the right foundation is made for a more lasting make-up.

First a Clean Skin.

The first rule is: Never apply make-up on top of make-up without cleansing the skin first. A scrupulously clean skin is the best foundation to work with. Whether you use a cleansing cream, lotion or soap and water, be sure that the skin is perfectly fresh and clean. Follow the cleansing with brisk patting with a pad of cotton that has been wrung out of iced, cold water and then dipped in skin tonic. This patting is a sure way to combat perspiration and shine.

The Foundation.

Now for the foundation. The very fair skin is usually inclined to be dry and a creamy, dull foundation or a semiliquid is usually excellent. If you use the cream, take just a bit on the tip of the finger and blend carefully, blotting away any excess with a cleansing tissue. Follow with careful blending of rouge and use a lightweight powder. If you have used a heavy foundation cream during the winter, you may continue to make use of it by thinning it out with a little skin tonic. Take a little of the cream in the palm of the hand, add a few drops of the tonic and mix and blend before applying to face and neck.

The darker, brunette skin is usually the oily type inclined to be shiny. This type should choose one of the finishing liquids, a lotion that goes on smoothly, blends easily and stays put, keeping powder clingy, smooth and lasting, too. Such adherent lotions are really a boon to summer beauty. If this lotion seems too powdery, use your skin tonic to thin it down a little.

Before applying more powder to the proverbially shiny nose, if you will remove any remaining powder and pat with a little skin tonic or touch the nose with alcohol or witch hazel several times a day, then apply the finishing lotion and your powder this make-up trick should serve you long and well.

I have a little bulletin called "Laws for Looking Cool" which should be of value to every women who values a dainty and lovely appearance during the wilting weather. Send self-addressed envelope for it.

Elsie Pierce, famous beauty lecturer, will answer any questions on beauty you wish to ask her. Address Miss Pierce, in care of The Washington Post, inclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

NEW YORK, July 12.—Ah, lotus petals of carven ebony, as lusterless and amoliderigly alive as love not yet stabbed to death!

Ah, leaves of sandlewood, as thin as the line between love and hate, and as compellingly fragrant as the bitterness of desire!

And curved stems of cedar, and teakwood pistils, straight and spired! And all precious woods wrought cunningly, chosen significantly, and poised as a gesture—on miladi's bosom.

The very latest in corsages, my deahs, is what I am telling you about. Albeit the strangeness of cunningly made boutonnieres and nosegays of wood intrigued me and betrayed me into the above. Which same should be whispered to the moon in the stillness of one's boudoir, perhaps, but never, never strung into letters and words for one's deah public.

Yes, wooden flowers and leaves and vines, delicately scented by their very material, delicately carved and delightfully assembled, is the very latest fantasy of the mode. From England, land of supposedly sluggish romanticism.

Of course carved wooden beads and bracelets and all manner of buttons are nothing new. Even wood inlay for bags and glove cuffs. Moore or less effective, too, and I think very artistic. And as in the above mentioned, the wood used for the flowers is left in its natural color, occasionally varnished, usually not, since varnish imprisons the natural fragrance of the wood.

Tailor's canvas makes the best beach hat! And easy to handle, too, as well as effective. This week's leaflet tells you how to make a chic beach hat in your spare finger time—of this material. There is a beach bag, too, in this leaflet—I mean, of course, instructions for making one—and a beach dress, easily made. Why not send your stamped, self-addressed envelope to the Dare Department of The Washington Post for the leaflet?

Color has such a lot to do with everything this summer! Take for instance a frock such as this: The background of the printed part of it is beige, then the flowers are peach and mauve, with delicate green stems and leaves. Does the designer then make incrustations of the plain organdy in any of these four shades? Decidedly not! But makes them of a sunshine yellow—which instantly brightens up the whole frock, seeming to give tone to the other colors by its proximity.

And then the cape—which, by the way, ties on at the shoulders and converts the frock into one quite suitable for dressy afternoon wear in the country. Well, the cape is not yellow, but peach-colored organdy!

Au revoir.

How to Keep Well

By DR. W. A. EVANS

HOW TO REDUCE THE ABDOMEN.

STANDING, clothing loose: Raise the arms above the head pointing upward; carry the trunk, arms and head forward and downward, arms stiff and straight, legs stiff, knees unbent. If possible, touch the fingers to the toes or to the floor. Reverse the movement, returning to the original position. Repeats: To touch the fingers to the toes or floor is not difficult for a short-legged, long-bodied person with a fairly supple trunk. This will always be impossible for a long-legged, short-bodied man unless his trunk is exceptionally supple.

This exercise compresses the abdominal organs and uses the abdominal muscles. One not accustomed to it quickly becomes winded. Beginners should not push any exercise after they have become winded. On the other hand, a person in condition need not stop when he becomes moderately winded.

Sitting: Sit on the floor with the legs extended. Bend the trunk forward as far as possible, flexing not only the hip muscles but the trunk. Touch the toes with the fingers and the knees with the face. Reverse the motion. Repeat.

Lying: Use a board 6 feet long and 20 inches wide, with stirrups for the feet at or near one end. Place a light pillow under the head. Lying lengthwise of the board, raise the legs to the vertical position, bending the hips and keeping the knees flexed. Reverse the motion. As the feet go back to the horizontal, the back tends to bow. Straighten the back. Repeat.

Put the feet in the stirrups. Raise the body to the vertical position. Reverse. Repeat. The beginner executing this movement will bend the knees and jerk the body upward. Without this, he probably would not succeed. As strength increases this exercise should be executed without bending the knees. The body should be slowly bent to the upright position without any snapping. Likewise, in returning to the horizontal the muscles of the abdominal wall and back should resist gravity and ease the trunk down.

Raise the head of the board six inches, using bricks or some solid, strong body for the purpose. Lying on the board, repeat the exercises given above. Lower the head of the board and then raise its foot six inches. Lying, repeat these exercises. While they crowd and compress the abdominal fat their chief purpose is to strengthen the abdominal muscles.

Lying flat on the back with the abdomen exposed, roll a cannon ball, or some heavy substitute, over the abdominal wall in all directions. Rolling weights on the abdomen massages the fat. When fat is pushed around much the disposition is for it to be picked up and carried away.

Of the out-of-door sports rowing is about the best for reducing the girth. The boxer who stands up and lets his sparring partner pound his solar plexus is taking out insurance against a protuberant abdomen.

Of the various kinds of gymnasium work that on the bars is as good as any for the purpose in mind. Spading outranks other work in keeping the waistline down.

THANKS FOR SUGGESTION.

ALCOHOL HABIT.

L. L. writes:

1. Not long ago I read a statement that alcohol is a habit-forming, racial poison. Is this true?
2. Has alcohol food value?
3. Is alcohol a food?

REPLY.

1. Yes.
2. Yes.
3. Practically speaking, it is not. The food values are there, but mixed with them are drug qualities that make the food values useless.

SUMMER COLDS —how they hang on!

AVOID SELF-INFECTION Use KLEENEX disposable tissues

Instead, use Kleenex. Then destroy it. Germs and all. And don't think this health habit is expensive. It will cost you less than laundering!

Kleenex is an exquisite tissue, made of softest rayon-cellulose. It is many times more absorbent than linen or cotton, and so is especially soothing during colds.

As you destroy Kleenex after using, there's no washing. No spreading germs through laundry bags, to contaminate other clothing.

Kleenex comes in the regular handkerchief size, and a towel size three times as large.

NEW POWERS URGED FOR RESERVE BOARD

Paul Mazur Tells Virginia Institute Central Banking Body Needed.

Charlottesville, Va., July 12 (A.P.).—Paul Mazur, financial writer and partner in a New York investment banking firm, told the Institute of Public Affairs tonight that the Federal Reserve must be reorganized and equipped as a central banking institution for all phases of American industrial and commercial activity.

Mr. Mazur, who spoke yesterday before the economic recovery round table, was invited to address the institute tonight when Senator Carter Glass wired that he found it necessary to postpone his appearance here until Friday or Saturday.

"The Federal Reserve System was obsolete the day it was established in 1913," Mr. Mazur asserted. "It served in no way to act as a deterrent to the recent speculative orgy. It offers no fair method for rediscounting mortgage paper and as a result private agencies were active in a process of overstimulation during the prosperity period."

Thrift Placed on Pedestal.

He charged that the banking system "is equipped to stimulate production but pays no attention to consumption. We have created a set of financial morals. We have made it noble to produce, ignoble to consume. We have placed thrift upon a pedestal.

"To talk about this country as entering a period of permanent retrogression is to accept a defeatist policy. To adjust ourselves to the permanent reduction of production is to accept the philosophy of poverty.

"It is essential for business and Government leaders to recognize that the problem with us is the problem of distribution of purchasing power so that the product of manufacturing mechanism can be absorbed.

"Such a program requires a change in industrial thinking and a definitely fundamental change in commercial banking. The Federal Reserve can lead the way. It should learn, just as business men should learn, that the Nation can be prosperous only so long as its production is properly correlated with its consumption. The Federal Reserve should be equipped to control investment in speculation and should offer facilities for rediscounting more paper and for accelerating or deterring the development of consumer financing."

Problem of Unemployment.

Willard E. Parker, of the Rochester employment center, presented a statistical picture of the unemployment situation in the country, and asserted that a reeducational system is needed to train unemployed persons to fill new jobs and to operate machines which are displacing them.

Figures were produced to show that approximately 34 per cent of the total number of persons, considered "unemployed" are between the ages of 21 and 30. Approximately 28 per cent are between the ages of 31 and 40, 18 per cent between 41 and 50 and 10 per cent over 50. About 14 per cent were shown to be under 21.

Among other measures proposed by Mr. Park was the establishment of vocational and educational guidance clinics in every community for diagnosing the aptitudes and providing vocational guidance to all individuals in need.

Dean James C. Lawrence, of the University of Minnesota described the unemployment problem as an individual problem.

Bingham Delays Repeal Pressure

Drops Effort to Bring Up at Once Resolution on Submission.

(Associated Press.)

An effort to bring up immediately a resolution submitting repeal of the eighteenth amendment to the States was dropped yesterday by Senator Bingham (Republican), Connecticut, because of objections by both Democratic and Republican leaders.

Senator Robinson, of Arkansas, the Democratic chief, was the first to oppose immediate consideration, remarking this was not the proper time to take up a repealer.

Senator Watson, of Indiana, then added his objection and said when the proper time comes to vote on repeal he will cast his ballot for its submission. Bingham's move followed a challenge by Senator Ashurst (Democrat), Arizona, to seek immediate action on the repealer.

Crop Loan Rules Modification Told

Additional Help Will Be Given Farmers for Marketing.

(Associated Press.)

Borrowers of crop production loans are to be permitted to apply to harvesting expenses 4 cents a bushel from sales of wheat and rye and 2 cents a bushel from sales of oats and barley covered by mortgages to the Government.

Under modified regulations made public yesterday by Secretary Hyde, farmers were given the aid in getting crops to market. The allowance, it is stipulated, is not to exceed actual expenditures for twine, repairs to harvesting machinery and fuel and oil for harvesting.

The Secretary cited that some States make definite provisions for priority of claims against the crop, seed liens having precedence followed by claims of threshers and labor. In those States where the Government took a seed lien as security for all or part of the loan, the payment of the seed lien in full must be made before other bills are paid.

PROPOSED TREASURY INQUIRY POSTPONED

Rules Unit Defers Action Till Next Session on Plea of Leaders.

(Associated Press.)

An investigation of the Treasury Department, proposed suddenly in the House last Friday, yesterday was shunted aside.

The rules committee to which this and other resolutions for inquiries had been referred, voted to postpone action on them all until the December session.

Chairman Pou (Democrat), North Carolina, announced this decision after members had discussed the matter for an hour in closed session.

Monday, Undersecretary Ballantine, of the Treasury and Eugene Meyer, chairman of the Federal Reserve Board, testified such an inquiry would be unsettling to Government functions and delaying to economic improvement.

In view of this testimony, Pou said "I could not divest myself of the feeling it was an inopportune time to investigate."

But later he told the House that the "great returns to corporations of taxes paid should be analyzed and examined by a committee of the House or a committee of both houses."

Pou said Speaker Garner had not urged the investigation, but had told the committee to use its best judgment in the matter.

Representative Snell, Republican floor leader, said he wished to congratulate "the rules committee for using such excellent judgment."

In ensuing debate Representative O'Connor (Democrat), New York, charged that the Republican campaign "is financed out of the Treasury of the United States."

"Watch," he said in support of this statement, "the tax refunds and the campaign contributions between now and November."

He was immediately assailed by Representative Woodruff (Republican), Michigan, who said if half the charge were true O'Connor "owes it to the people" to bring out an investigating resolution.

Stimson's Plea Fails To Boost Geneva Fund

(Associated Press).

Despite a personal plea yesterday by Secretary Stimson, it appers the American delegates to the Geneva Arms Conferance will have to live on $6 a day or pay the differance out of their pockets.

Stimson called on Representative McDuffie, (Democrat), Alabama chairman of the House economy committee. He sought House approval of a resolution passed by the Senate to permit Geneva delegates to continue drawing $25 a day. The $6 a day limitation was provided in the national economy act. McDuffie was opposed to reopening the controversial economy bill this session and said a majority of the economy committee members felt as he did.

HERRIOT IS WINNER IN FISCAL BILL VOTE

Gets Vote of Confidence in Keeping $4,800,000 Item on Reserve Training.

Paris, July 12 (A.P.).—Premier Edouard Herriot, home from the difficult reparations negotiations at Lausanne, rode out a series of storms in the Chamber of Deputies today and emerged with an overwhelming vote of approval for the government finance bill, which is aimed at balancing the budget.

In an all-night session, broken only by a two-hour recess, the deputies voted, 305 to 170, for the bill, which has been drawn to effect savings of $18,500,000 and to increase revenues, especially by an income tax boost.

The premier inferentially raised the question of Adolf Hitler's storm troops at one point in the struggle.

The Socialists wanted to kill a $4,800,000 item to pay for the training period of military reservists. M. Herriot, making the issue a question of confidence, declared:

"While we would be hesitating to train reservists, elsewhere there are masses whose numbers can not exactly be told, but whose political power is evident since they impose their own will."

His hearers took this as a reference to the Hitlerite army, in Germany, and the Socialist amendment was defeated, 360 to 179.

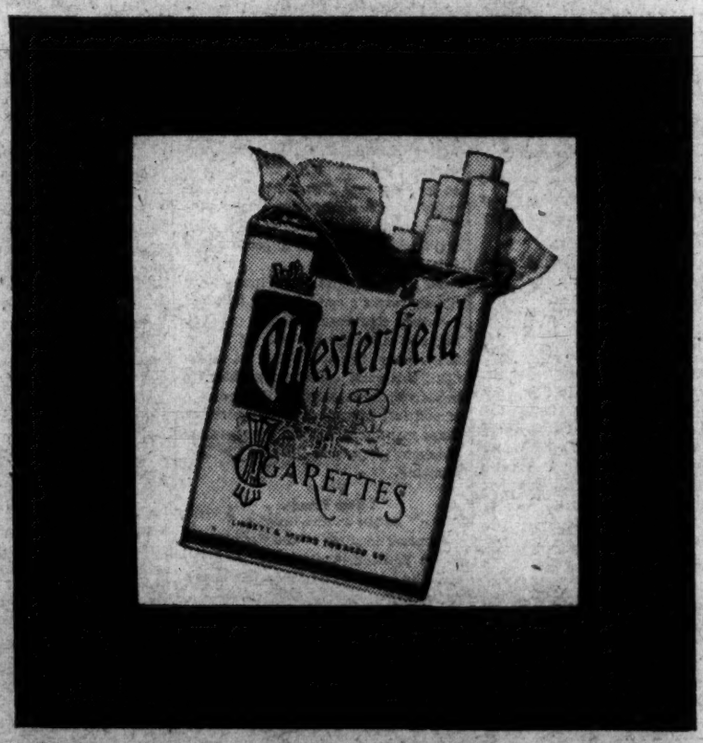
It's the Cigarette that's Milder and Tastes Better!



That's why more and more Smokers are changing to Chesterfield every day

WHEN you are smoking a lot of cigarettes every day, you naturally want a mild cigarette, and smokers try Chesterfields and find out that they are milder and taste better.

Then smokers tell other smokers—"one smoker telling another"—that they find that although they smoke a great many Chesterfields during the day, they never tire of them; and that they have found out that Chesterfield is a milder cigarette, that it is a cigarette that tastes better, that it is a cigarette with a most pleasing aroma.

Some time ago, in a Chesterfield advertisement, there was a statement, "A $90,000,000 Reason," and this means that the larger part of $90,000,000 is invested in the right kind of ripe, mild Domestic and Turkish tobaccos to make sure that Chesterfields are milder and taste better.

May we ask you to try them?

GOV. ROOSEVELT'S TASK.

In his address at Boston Secretary Mills went to the heart of the economic issues on which the 1932 presidential campaign will be fought. The question is whether the Democratic party can offer a more constructive program than that which is already functioning under Republican leadership.

At the beginning of the campaign there is a hope in Democratic circles that the depression has already defeated President Hoover and that nothing remains to be done but to gather in the fruits of victory. This attitude will probably change as the campaign progresses. Voters will find that merely registering dissatisfaction with economic conditions will not meet the situation. They must choose between two different programs for the restoration of better times.

Criticism of President Hoover is futile unless his opponents can set forth what he has failed to do, and what they would have done had they been in his place. Gov. Roosevelt must bring forth his program and match it against the achievements of the administration in wrestling with this world-wide economic derangement.

The effect of Gov. Roosevelt's failure to offer a concrete program is to center attention on the record of the Democratic House of Representatives. Gov. Roosevelt can not defend the record of his party in the House. Nearly every major plank in the Democratic platform repudiates what has been done by the House. The greatest mistake the Democrats have made thus far is in selecting Speaker Garner for the vice presidential nomination, thus definitely connecting the national ticket with the Garner pork barrel, the bonus raid, the inflation scheme, the attempt to guarantee bank deposits, and the attempt to set up a Federal bank with thousands of branches. Republicans will insist, and with a good deal of logic, that proposals like these are all that can be expected of the Democratic party if the present speaker is to be the right hand adviser of one who is inexperienced in the affairs of the Government.

It is the task of Gov. Roosevelt to show that he has a program of national scope that is more sound and more constructive than that which has already been enacted into law under the leadership of President Hoover; to prove that the House Democrats who have done their best to destroy the credit of the Government do not have his sympathy or support; and to demonstrate that he has sufficient mastery of the party to prevent a stampede of radicals seeking bonuses, pork barrels and the like. Otherwise, how can Gov. Roosevelt ask for the confidence of the people in his leadership?

The advantage of the Republican party is that it has actually made a record that is fundamentally sound. The only results to which the Democrats can point are the fatal proposals of the House. Gov. Roosevelt faces the extremely difficult task of convincing the public that he is wiser than his party and can compel it to reverse the record it has made during this session of Congress.

INFLATION NONSENSE.

Confidence in the sagacity of Congress is never shaken so much as when basic questions of financial policy are at issue. The House, a few months ago, made an attempt to increase commodity prices by law, and became the laughingstock of the financial world. Now the Senate attaches the Glass-Borah inflation scheme to the home loan bank bill.

No one has ever explained to the Senate or the House just how the addition of $1,000,000,000 in currency could raise price levels. During the last three years the currency in circulation has increased by $1,080,000,000. Yet deflation has steadily proceeded and depression has swept over the country. Fear has resulted in hoarding currency. In other words, the increase is a direct result of the depression. How, then, can any reasonable individual expect that the issuance of another $1,000,000,000 in currency will abolish fear?

If more currency were needed, the Federal Reserve banks could supply it without any difficulty under the present law. Senator Glass himself has said that there is no need for extending the circulating privilege to Government bonds at this time. The Federal Reserve banks have been purchasing Government bonds and thus pumping money into commercial banks. Plenty of money is available.

As Senator Reed pointed out, an increase in the volume of currency can not raise commodity prices unless the currency is debased. Under the Federal Reserve system the volume of currency is controlled by business needs and other demands. If another $1,000,000,000 in currency were issued, and the gold value of the dollar remained the same, it could have no possible effect on commodity prices, and would not act as a stimulant for business. Nothing can be gained by adding to the amount of currency lying idle in bank vaults.

POLITICAL INVESTIGATIONS.

One reckless charge follows another with little regard for fact in the demand of a few politicians for an investigation of the Treasury and the Federal Reserve Board. There is no reason except politics for pressing these inquiries. No evidence of anything amiss in the Treasury has been produced.

The Bureau of Internal Revenue is working out its program for collection of the new taxes recently levied by Congress. The Federal Reserve Board is engaged in the task of expanding credit and carrying out an important part of the administration's reconstruction program. A political muckraking inquiry would seriously interrupt this urgent work.

Of course, the basic objection to the proposed investigations is that they would not be impartial inquiries into fiscal matters, but a search for campaign data. The loose charges to which the House has listened are not new. All tax refunds of any consequence are submitted to a joint congressional committee for scrutiny. Every one who has any acquaintance with the conduct of the Treasury knows that refunds are necessary because the Government asks taxpayers to remit even though there is a dispute on the amount due, with the understanding that overcharges will be refunded. In this way the Government saves millions of dollars and expedites collections, even though it sometimes has to make considerable refunds in adjusting accounts. These refunds are of little interest to any one, except politicians seeking a campaign issue.

Investigation of the administrative departments is one of the important prerogatives of Congress. It is well for congressmen to be on the alert to prevent lax application of the law and to expose corruption. But inquiries for the sole purpose of making political capital are an unwarranted interference with the public business.

RADICALS GET TOGETHER.

Dr. John Dewey's clique of radicals has at last acquired the courage of its convictions. At its convention in Cleveland this coterie, which masquerades under the title of the League for Independent Political Action, decided to repudiate both major parties and cast its lot with the Socialists. This year Norman Thomas, Socialist candidate for President, will be the league's idol.

John Dewey and his clique have always belonged in the Socialist camp. They have no sympathy with either of the major parties because they have no understanding of American institutions and traditions. In going over to the Socialist candidate they will be in sympathetic surroundings, and can advocate destruction to their hearts' content. The public will be delighted to see the Columbia professor in stripes of his own color.

This decision of the League for Independent Political Action gives hopes that other radical groups may muster up courage to announce their socialistic affiliations. The league intends to call a convention of disgruntled elements next year in an effort to start a third party. Presumably its program would be built around that of the existing Socialist organization.

Some advantages would be gained by unification of these radical factions. They could choose Senator Norris as their presidential candidate, with Gov. Gifford Pinchat as a running mate. They would be no longer guilty of hypocrisy and party mutiny, but would at least be what they appeared to be. The old parties would be glad to see their traitors go over to the Socialists.

THE TENTH OLYMPIAD.

Nearly every ship arriving at an American port brings participants in the Olympic sports which will begin the last of this month. Los Angeles is preparing to entertain a cosmopolitan assembly such as even that famed city has never seen before. There will be over 2,000 athletes in attendance and countless thousands from every corner of the earth; and for every foreigner there will be many Americans. California hospitality will provide unprecedented attractions for the event.

This year the United States will be represented by 340 entrants, which is sixty less than took part in the games at Amsterdam four years ago. At that Olympiad the Americans took first place by a large margin, scoring 169 points, Finland being the nearest competitor with 80 points. Germany was third with 63, Canada fourth with 55, Sweeden fifth with 47, and Great Britain sixth with 38. It was in the track events that Americans made the poorest showing, but they carried off many honors in swimming and rowing.

At former Olympic meets there has been no little complaint of the preparations made for caring for the athletes. Housing, meals, entertainment and general comfort were unsatisfactory. However, Los Angeles has has made preparations that will doubtless avoid all such criticism. Representatives of the German Athletic Federation, who are already on the ground, are enthusiastic in their praise, saying that never at any previous meet have such statisfactory arrangements been made.

It is significant that, notwithstanding the difficult situation generally faced by European nations due to the depression, not one has failed to supply its athletic representation for the Los Angeles Olympiad. The games, opening on July 30, will continue for sixteen days and nights. All the world will be watching the fortunes of favorite sons and daughters.

LABOR AND THE MACHINE.

A correspondent, disagreeing with recent discussion in these columns of the influence of labor-saving machinery, asserts that the machine never has been, and is not now, responsible for unemployment. For every man it displaces, he claims, it gives employment to more than one. The benefits of mass production made possible by modern inventive genius are so manifest that it would be gratifying to believe that labor has not suffered in recent years from displacement by the machine. Actual figures, however, do not bear out the contention that workers can all, or even in large part, be reabsorbed by industry today when supplanted by machines.

In earlier eras of rapid expansion, when factories and industrial units were fewer, and there were fewer specialists among workers, the possibility of stepping readily from one job to another was greater. Statistics were quoted here showing that the various representative industries without exception have registered great increases in production and at the same time a notable decrease in labor forces. The average showed a 24 per cent increase in output with a 12 per cent reduction in labor.

President William Green of the American Federation of Labor shows by a few concrete examples why, even before the depression, unprecedented numbers were out of work. Within five years pig iron production was so improved that seven men on a unit could do the work formerly requiring 60. In 1913 500 razor blades per operative was the limit, and in 1930 the output per man had risen to 32,000. Thirty men with ten machines in a tube mill displace 240 men. One man with a string of automatic machines often dislodges twenty-five skilled mechanics. One man now makes 10,000 light bulbs in a day, a task that formerly required the work of six. Nowhere, of course, has the influence of modern machinery been more pronounced than in agricultural production. Although farm population is decreasing, enormous crops have outstripped the demands of the population.

It has been shown that a surprising number of workers were unemployed even before the 1929 crash. It will be harder than ever to provide work for all, because many of the older plants that employed most laborers proportionately will never be operated again. Only the more modern and mechanically efficient plants can survive. A condition confronts the industrial world with returning business which can only be met by a system which will limit the hours and days of labor of individual workers, thus giving them all a chance.

Britain's chancellor of the exchequer says that Americans were consulted regarding the notorious "gentlemen's agreement," and Prime Minister MacDonald says they were not. This puts British diplomacy in bad, either way.

Jack Garner may be licked, but his idea that the United States ought to finance the people has its attractions, especially on the first of every month.

It is not quite certain whether Gov. Roosevelt wanted to come to Washington to test the power of politics or the politics of power.

In the last analysis the Lausanne business reduces itself down to the old skin game—heads Europe wins, and tails Uncle Sam loses.

Maybe the Myth II is in search of the missing Democratic economic program.

HIGHWAY HAPPINESS

By WILLIAM ULLMAN.

If pleasure driving is not as pleasant as it used to be the car owner can not lay the entire blame upon congestion of traffic or some other purely objective thing. Quite a bit of the fault lies with himself.

Those who protest most volubly about the lack of pleasure in pleasure driving usually make congestion the chief object of their complaint. That it really is not as serious a drawback to driving enjoyment as many insist is indicated by the fact that congestion does not vary much from Sunday to Sunday, or, on whatever other day or particular highway it occurs.

Even though real congestion does exist at various times and places, there are two very definite things the driving pleasure-seeker can do about it to his enjoyment. He can avoid it or he can adapt himself to it.

The writer recently took a Sunday afternoon airplane trip of a few hours above Washington and vicinity. From the vantage point of 2,000 feet he could see highways in every direction. Dozens of stretches, not so wide as the main roads, but just as smooth and passing through countryside equally beautiful, were virtually deserted. On the main roads thousands of cars struggled to make headway—and were making it, except at various inevitable bottlenecks, such as important intersecting highways.

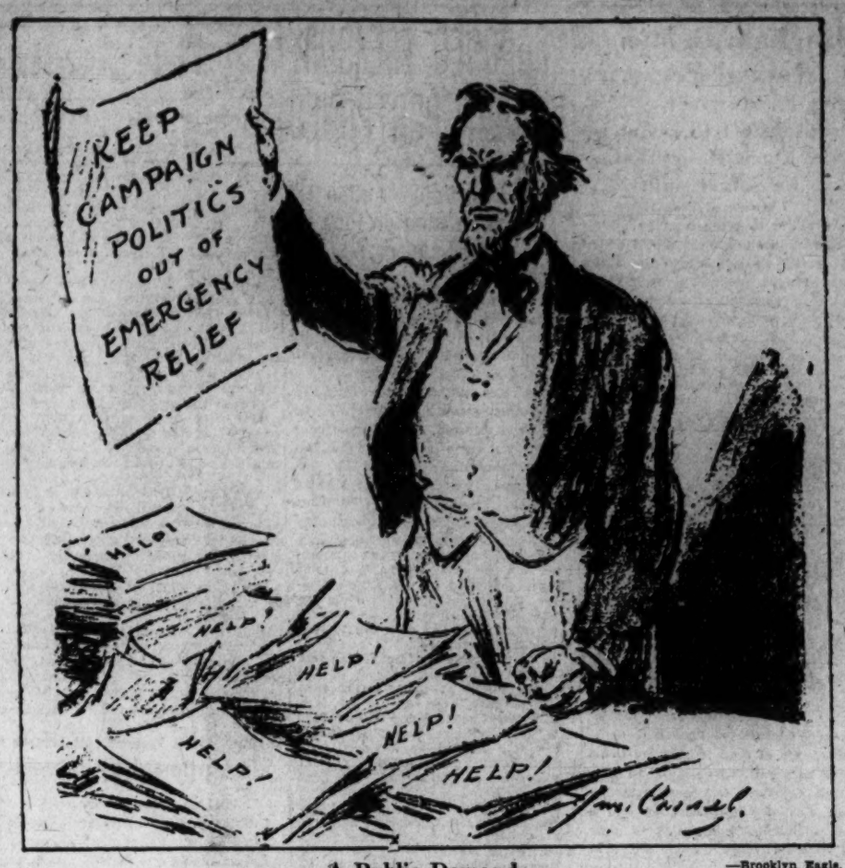
The ease of avoiding congestion could not have been more definitely demonstrated. The pleasure-driving highways were virtually unused; the "get-somewhere" highways were filled. No other conclusion could be drawn from it than that the pleasure-hunting motorist was looking in the wrong place.

This aerial inspection tour of the roads pointed another lesson, one relating to the part adaptability plays in smoothing out traffic movement even on the congested roads. So long as all of the cars moved as one—keeping the same speed and relative position—the flow of traffic was free, easy and effortless. Only when some individual driver revealed his impatience by cutting out of the line, passing and cutting in again, was a snarl created.

It all resembled one of these demonstrations of what happens in traffic as staged with miniature model cars on a miniature highway.

COLORED SNOW.

Red rain and red snow recently caused residents of some parts of Silesia to imagine themselves on the coast of the Red Sea instead of in the southeastern corner of Germany, says the Christian Science Monitor. An explanation was sought from the savants. The meteorological station of Breslau reported that the color was caused by very fine red sand from the African deserts which had traveled through the stratosphere—at a height of more than 20 miles—across the Mediterranean and possibly the Alps. The Sahara had paid a visit to Silesia.



A Public Demand. —Brooklyn Eagle.

POST HASTE.

Germany asks you to observe that if she was not relieved of "war guilt" at Lausanne, she at least didn't sign the "gentlemen's agreement."

As Mr. MacDonald almost explains it, the new triple alliance merely provides for acting together singly on Uncle Sam.

Secretary Mills intimated in his speech that the Roosevelt Myth was named after the governor's constructive policy.

Old-fashioned gentlemen like Washington and Jefferson, who thought governmental functions were more or less restricted to protecting the Nation, maintaining domestic order and administering justice, would feel that they were being uselessly mollycoddled by the many modern ramifications of State and Federal social service.

Some of the wet orations are fearfully dry.

Nearly fifty expeditions are going into the Arctic and Antarctic this year. Have our asset-freezing facilities become deficient?

Dr. Butterfield, of New York, figured it out for the Institute of Public Affairs that it is only necessary to increase the income of the 1,000,000,000 farmers of the world $10 a year to "provide an enormous outlet for manufactured products." You see how easy it is for a professor.

Senator Glass thinks a scientific investigation is necessary to determine how drunk is drunk. Doubtless expert testimony could be had and volunteers secured who would sacrifice themselves for experimental purposes.

Democrats might have searched a long time before they could have found two other candidates representing kid-glove aristocracy of the East and the rough-and-ready West whose "liberal" minds travel so congenially on a single track.

"Dr. Merrill, back from the Orient, says Japan is not belligerent." It's just an old custom to take what she wants when she wants it.

In his criticism of Roosevelt's lack of a definite program, Secretary Mills overlooked the governor's demand in his Atlanta speech for "bold, persistent experimentation. Take a method and try it; if it fails try another."

You may think you understand Americans, but try to explain why a million would want to spend Sunday at Coney Island.

"Hitler sees the Lausanne pact worth 75 cents in six months." He has his optimistic moments.

PAUL HUDSON.

FULL REALIZATION.

Winston Churchill, according to the Boston Transcript, while in New York told this one. A man lecturing on the subject of "Fear" said, "Only those who have been aroused from sleep by the cry 'Man overboard!' can fully realize its terrible meaning." "That isn't quite so," said a little man in the audience. "I heard it once while I was wide awake, and I realized it more than anybody."

"You couldn't," objected the lecturer. "You might think you could, but you couldn't."

"Oh, yes, I could," persisted the little man. "I was the fellow who was overboard."

SYMPATHY.

I do not mind my pains and aches.
I fancy I can brave them through.
The burden of my own mistakes
Sets me to try anew.

But, oh, to see a friend in pain
Seems more than I can bear,
When I in strength stand by in vain
And cannot help him there.

And, oh, to feel another's woe
And helpless be to aid
Stings deeper than the lashing blow
Which on my back is laid.

'Tis deepest torture to behold
The pain a child endures,
And standing there so strong and bold
Wish the harsh pain were yours.

The Prettiest Pebble Is Hateful if You Thought You Had a Diamond.

By ROBERT QUILLEN

SAY what you will concerning equality, the fact remains that the people of America are divided into classes.

And there is little hope for happiness in marriage except for those who choose mates from their own class.

This does not mean that mates will be unhappy if one is richer than the other, or better educated or wiser. The distinction that matters is more fundamental than that.

It is a difference of souls—a gulf so wide and deep that no common ideal can be found to bridge it.

Few women marry "beneath themselves." Those who are fine enough to scorn vulgarity are quick to discern and repel it, and social custom protects them from intimate contact with men of a lower class.

A few are tricked, of course, for vile men who make money and put on a veneer of decency find few doors closed against them. When a woman of delicate sensibilities and gentle instincts surrenders to one of these, she has no alternative except divorce or madness. Sanitariums are filled with her kind, defiled and broken by shames and vulgar violences that killed their love and filled them with hatred and loathing.

Men with high ideals and decent instincts are more frequently fooled. They break through social barriers to go down as well as up. And their comparative innocence of guile, coupled with their natural tendency to judge a woman by her appearance alone, makes them easy prey for any "good looker" who has the wit to talk little and conceal her tastes and opinions.

To say that the man has only himself to blame is manifestly unfair. That could be said of any victim. He is tricked by his imagination and the woman is careful not to undeceive him.

When his eyes are opened and his soul is sickened by the vulgarity of his mate, there is little hope for him. Shame seals his lips. His code demands that he play the game.

Perhaps he suffers less than the tricked woman, but his life is wrecked none the less.

Man or woman, there is nothing but "grief and baleful discontent" with a mate unworthy of respect. And no edict of Church or State can make dirt seem respectable to the clean.

PRO AND CON

Press Comment Upon Acts and Actors in the Great American Show, "Politics."

Counting Them Too Soon.
Kansas City Star.

Confidence contributes to the gayety of campaigns and to some extent obviates the bitterness incident to fighting against discouragement. With the platforms adopted and the tickets nominated, Democrats are experiencing or affecting a high degree of confidence in the result. The prospect is so inviting that House Democrats already are considering succession to the Speakership after March 4, 1933, when Mr. Garner is expected to become Vice President.

So far the House Republicans have not suggested a candidate for Speaker, a rather significant failure, perhaps. But the campaign has not yet begun. Much may happen before it ends. Still, this early counting of chickens is a diverting incident in the progress of political adventuring. It's nice for those mentioned for the Speakership, of whom there were eight at the last counting.

Two Roads.
Buffalo Courier-Express.

Democratic party to the Republican party: You take the dry road and I'll take the wet one and I'll be temperate "afore ye."

In a Hole on Beer.
Baltimore Sun.

No sooner did the Democratic party adopt a platform calling, among other things, for immediate legalization of light wines and beer than Senator Bingham, smarting under the rebuffs of his fellow Republicans, reintroduced the much-discussed and much-defeated beer bill as a rider to the home loan bank bill. It may be suspected that the Connecticut senator was animated as much by a desire to put the Democrats in a hole as by the hope of accomplishing a needed reform. And it is pertinent to observe that he may maneuver his own fellow Republicans into the same hole into which he seeks to drive the Democrats if he persists in trying to put them on record at once on wines and beer.

Congress Still Muddling.
Philadelphia Public Ledger.

Mid-July looms with this contentious Seventy-second Congress still in session. Wrestling with its sole remaining piece of important legislation, it seems about to "muddle through" unemployment relief as it muddled through economy and taxation.

The tax bill was a muddle. With the opportunity of levying a sensible tax that would balance the budget without unbalancing the average bank account or imposing any general hardship, both House and Senate ignored the best financial advice and produced a hodge-podge which will doubtless be as deficient as a revenue raiser as it will be a heavy burden to most taxpayers.

The economy bill which President Hoover so reluctantly accepted was another example of "muddling through." Failing to the extent of $200,000,000 or $300,000,000 to make ends meet, it emphasizes the fact that a politics-playing Congress was not willing in an election year to make cuts in expenses that might cost votes.

Not a Campaign Issue.
Brooklyn Eagle.

The men directing the political campaign of our two national parties must decide on whether to carry the question of debt revision, in its new phase, into the campaign. The question is not in the campaign unless they put it there.

The matter of the foreign debts owed our Government should not be settled in the confusion of party strife. It can become a party matter, and may have to be made one, later on, if the majority of both parties in Congress can not reach an agreement on it. But it would be better settled without the injection of partisanship if that should prove possible. It is a very big question, too big to pass at a single jump, in the midst of existing campaign preoccupations.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR.

Gangsters Become Bold When They Get Away With Intimidation Methods—They Must Be Fought With Their Own Weapons.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: An article under a Chicago date line stated that a gangster, awaiting trial for bank robbery, had been released from custody and apparently restored to full freedom on a recommendation of the prosecuting attorney to the court that expressed, by implication at least, threats that machine guns might be used to intimidate and possibly exterminate some of the witnesses who had, at a previous trial, identified this same gangster as the leader of the bank robbers. He left the courtroom smiling.

We have cause to believe that this same suggestion of violence has been responsible on previous occasions for the liberation of gangsters held for trial. One blushes with shame at the statement in open court of a prosecuting attorney and the court's subsequent release of the prisoner at the implied admission of failure of the proper officials to protect witnesses on whom the outcome of a case rests. It begins to look as if there were but one remedy for a condition of this sort. It is one that proved very efficient in California in 1939—"The Vigilantes."

Gangsters today have become a menace to everything that represents true Americanism, and successful intimidation will only add to their attitude of dictatorship.

Intoxicants Can't Be Had by Voting for Strong Beer Before Repeal.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: The Democratic platform calling for immediate modification of the Volstead act does not require dry senators or members to run amuck by voting for a beverage which may be intoxicating.

For what purpose does the senator from Connecticut rise, if it is not to get beer that is intoxicating?

Why should Democrats put themselves in a hole by voting for something that turns out to be intoxicating, and therefore unconstitutional?

The Democratic platform does not call for beer that is intoxicating. But Mr. Bingham wants intoxicating beer. That is the difference.

Democracy stands for the Constitution. Mr. Bingham would violate the Constitution to get beer that intoxicates.

Before the Volstead act can be modified to allow more alcohol in beer the question of intoxicability must be settled. As a supporter of the Democratic platform and a believer in repeal I insist that the Constitution must not be attacked by a foolish attempt to restore intoxicants before repeal is effected. Nothing would be gained by this attempt, because the Supreme Court would set aside any law that tried to provide for intoxicating beverages while the eighteenth amendment was in effect.

WET DEMOCRAT.

Says European Debts Owed the United States Are for Money Loaned After the War for Reconstructive Purposes.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: The large majority of our people believe the debts owed by European governments are for money loaned to carry on the war, whereas practically all of the amount is due for money loaned for reconstruction purposes.

To correct the erroneous impression in the minds of most of our people—for this is a subject that will loom larger and larger on the horizon of world politics—may I not suggest that The Post make it a rule to use some such phrase, parenthetical or otherwise, as "for moneys loaned to European countries after the war and for reconstructive purposes."

Only through such usage will our people become cognizant of the facts concerning these loans and debts due thereunder. V. M. A.

Can't Understand Prediction That Mr. Garner Would Be President in Event of Democratic Victory.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: In your letter column of July 7 there appeared a note from C. N. Burton in which he stated "in event of Democratic success at the polls in November, Mr. Garner would be President of the United States within a few months thereafter." I would much appreciate it if Mr. Burton would amplify his statement, as it is vague and not easy of comprehension.

L. H. POTZLER.

Give Us Real Beer or Wait for Repeal, Says Critic of Senator Bingham.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I protest against these silly attempts to foist poor beer upon us. If Senator Bingham and the others are in earnest they will not give us this 2.75 stuff, which is as bad as the one-half of 1 per cent stuff. Give us real beer or shut up until we can get repeal. H. J. KELLER.

Reduced Cost of Living Should Be Allowed for in Considering Salary and Wage Cuts.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Counting all the reductions in the necessitis of life, any person can get along with a moderate cut in salary or wages. Let's be fair. The cost of living has gone down. M. P. L.

Country Ready to Go Ahead as Soon as Uncertainty Is Over.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: When Congress adjourns uncertainty will cease and the country will begin to mend. The people want to go ahead. I have lately been through eighteen States and I didn't hear much talk of depression, but I heard a lot of criticism of Congress for prolonging the period of uncertainty. J. G. HINSHAW.

EVENTS IN CAPITAL SOCIETY

Mrs. Hoover Receives Society Reporters At Rapidan.

MRS. HOOVER entertained at luncheon yesterday at the President's Camp on the Rapidan for the group of Washington newspaperwomen who, through the winter, report events of social interest at the White House.

The party, which included about twenty-five guests, left the White House in the morning by motor, arriving at the camp after a most enjoyable drive shortly before luncheon was served. Mrs. Hoover, wearing a smart sports costume of Alice blue boucle, greeted her guests on the porch of the Town Hall, the largest of the group of cottages which, comprises the camp. Mrs. Hoover is spending several days at the camp this week, and has with her Mrs. Edgar Richard, of New York; Mrs. Joel T. Boone, wife of Capt. Boone; Mrs. Stark McMullin, Mrs. Long, wife of Maj. Long, U. S. M. C.; Mrs. Butler, wife of Lieut. Frederic B. Butler; Mrs. Bowman and Miss Doris Goss. Miss Mildred Hall went to the camp yesterday with the other guests, driving Mrs. Hoover's car.

After a short tour of the camp, which includes several beautifully appointed cottages, luncheon was served at small tables on a terrace outside the Town Hall. Mrs. Hoover explained the finding and making of the camp, and later the party took a walk through the beautiful trails around the camp. Tea was served in the President's cottage, which is built at the source of the Rapidan, where two streams, Mill Prong and Laurel Prong, run together, and after the most pleasant afternoon the guests departed for Washington.

The Minister of Ecuador and Senora de Zaldumbide have as their guest at the legation, Dr. Victor Andres Belaunde, professor of Latin-American history at the Miami University in Florida. Friends of C. U. Praised by Pope Stresses Importance of Work as He Receives Mgr. Ryan.

Vatican City, July 12 (A.P.).—Pope Pius today approved and blessed The Friends of the Catholic University, a new organization whose purpose is to support the institution at Washington, D. C.

In a private audience with Mgr. James H. Ryan, rector of the university, the Pontiff said that institution was "one of, if not the most important work in the United States."

The Pope recalled his recent reorganization of university administration, saying: "This constitutes a sign to the whole world that the church is serious about the scientific training of the clergy in the whole world." Mgr. Edward A. Pace, vice rector of the university, also was present at the audience.

Radio Dial Flashes

By ROBERT D. HEINL

HAVING failed to secure the vice presidential plum, which admiring friends whispered was to be his reward, the question is being asked, "What will Senator Dill receive for the active part he took in nominating Gov. Roosevelt at Chicago?"

Whether Senator Dill, who is co-author of the radio act, has Cabinet aspirations or not is not known, but this much can be said safely—the Westerner, at the moment, stands high among the chieftains in the Roosevelt camp and may take an important guiding hand in the campaign.

An English radio drama, "Danger," written especially for presentation over the air, and presented originally by the British Broadcasting Corporation, in England, will be broadcast by Station WRC at 7:30 o'clock tonight. The scene is laid in the bottom of a coal mine in Wales.

"RADIO remains a problem," Louis Salbitano, of Utica, N. Y., writes. "It is true that superb music, and more rarely a good speech, occasionally rewards us; but most of the time the air is made hideous with advertisement-dominated inanities. Literally it is a racket. Since 90 per cent of the programs are commercial, radio listeners are overwhelmed with parrot high-pressure methods they would not tolerate under other circumstances.

"This merciless bombardment is defeating its own ends. After all, our ears can not stand punishment indefinitely; the law of diminishing returns operates here as regards attention.

"Undoubtedly commercial sponsors are finding out, to their expensive dismay, that their potential market has been deafened into profitless inattention. There is the further handicap of hostility, as people resent, and rightly, the 'Say, listen to me, fella,' technique of some programs.

"Ballyhoo has its place at carnivals and political conventions; yet, as the principal method of selling over the air, it is not only ineffective but destroys good-will. Luckily we have become expert in the art of deftly tuning out objectionable stuff.

"Printed advertisement has the merit of being generally well-behaved and of inviting leisurely attention. People read and do get an impression that gets translated into buying. Radio will have to change its ways or lose out."

A CHICAGO inventor employes thermionic tubes as a fire-alarm apparatus, arranging thermo-electric couples to detect the presence of undue heat. An amplifier then sends in the alarm.

Here's another good one from Chicago. When the world's fair of 1933 opens next June, its lighting circuits will be switched on by light from the star Arcturus, gathered in the great Yerkes telescope, focussed on a photocell and amplified for transmission to relay switches at Chicago. The light used left Arcturus 40 years before, at the time of the Chicago World's Fair of 1893.

Norman Thomas, Socialist candidate for President, will be heard (WMAL, 9:30 o'clock) tonight, on the subject, "A Socialist's View of the National Platforms."

SELECTIONS from favorite operettas of another day will be presented during "Two Seats in the Balcony," over WRC at 1:30 o'clock this afternoon.

Countess Olga Albani, soprano, will make her first summer appearance on the Goodyear series tonight.

Gill and Demling, comedians, heard over the networks, have prepared a book on astrology called "Stars I Have Seen." "It's a knockout," says Gill.

NATS BEAT WHITE SOX, 13-12, ASSISTED BY 8 ERRORS

This MORNING with SHIRLEY L. POVICH

THEY did Benny Schwartz wrong at Laurel the other night. How the referee and judges arrived at their unanimous decision that gave the nod to Billy Landers this department is not prepared to answer. But it was unanimous all right—unanimously ridiculous and smelly.

If there are such things as the Marquis of Queensberry rules, Schwartz won the fight from here to Laurel, and back again. He hit Landers with everything but the Marquis himself, and after the fourth round couldn't lose on anything short of a knockout. And this column gave Schwartz the last two rounds in addition to the first four.

◆

Referee Ed Brockman and Judges Charlie Short and Ed Thomas set some new all-time, free-style records for astigmatism when they apparently disregarded every precept of scoring a fight and gave to Landers the decision that Schwartz had tucked away beyond doubt by all the rules of the game.

When the good Marquis laid down the Queensberry rules as the humane substitute for the brutal London prize ring rules more than a half century ago, he inserted the following clause about decisions:

"In all contests the decision shall be given in favor of the contestant who attains the greatest number of points. The points shall be for—Attack: Direct, clean hits with the knuckle part of the glove on any part of the head or body above the belt. Defense: Guarding, slipping, ducking or getting away. Where points are otherwise equal, the preference shall be given the contestant who does most of the leading off, or displays the best style."

◆

And Schwartz pummeled Landers almost at will with direct, clean hits on every part of the body that the Marquis prescribed. When he chose to go to the defense, he slipped and ducked and tied Landers up in the clinches, making the Norfolk lad look like a novice, as indeed he did appear in the hands of Schwartz.

The Marquis said that where points are otherwise equal, the decision goes to the contestant who does the most leading or displays the better style. Landers did the most leading, all right—with his chin, and was socked a hundred times by Benny's left. Landers did a lot of leading, too—with his right, violating the cardinal rule of boxing. If that's style, over the center field fence is out.

◆

This department has received a letter from Benny Schwartz anent Monday night's decision. If it's a squawk, he's certainly entitled to it. But Benny can have the rostrum:

"Dear Mr. Povich:

"I seldom give my version of my fights as I think it's bad taste, but I feel justified this time in telling you how I feel.

"All my career as a boxer has been to please my fans and give my utmost, but I want to tell you that I think last night's was the most unfair decision of my career. I trained hard for the fight and was in excellent condition and I know I beat Landers in six of the eight rounds. As you know, I fought three world champions and this is the first time I ever complained.

"This fight meant a lot to me and it hurt to see something taken away that I really earned. The fight game is based on ability to box and my experience enabled me to outbox fellows like Landers.

"I was accused of holding by the referee, but what I was doing was tying Landers up, which is perfectly permissible in boxing tactics. Tunney did it to Dempsey twice, and Loughran did it to Hamas, and many others.

"The referee kept jerking my arm from the elbows instead of breaking us properly, and if you don't think it hurts, just let some one try to do it. If I had let him continue, I wouldn't have been able to raise my hands in the next round.

"I am willing to box Landers again, winner take all, even if it's in a room with only newspapermen looking on. All I want is an even break. I was robbed of the decision last night."

I think so, too, Benny.

Doubles Title Of District At Stake

Army Netmen Meet Markey-Considine in Finals Today.

Personnel of Teams in Leech Cup Play Is Announced.

THE forty-fifth annual District of Columbia tennis championship will come to an end amid a skirmish of hard-hitting this afternoon at 5 o'clock at Wardman Park Hotel, when Lieut. Stanley K. Robinson and Cadet Dolf Muehleisen, Army Leech Cup players, from California, meet Bud Markey and Bob Considine, local combination, for the doubles title.

The match will be three out of five sets, and it brings together the first and third seeded teams of the tournament. Muehleisen and Robinson, favorites to win, advanced to the final round by trouncing the strong team of Barney Welsh and Maurice O'Neill, 6—2, 6—1, while Markey and Considine were beating out Lieuts. (U. S. N.) Gerald Smith and J. K. McCue, 6—1, 6—4.

Markey-Considine Good Combination.

Markey and Considine are a scratch combination, formed just before the start of the tournament, but both are experienced doubles players and might well make serious trouble for the Army aviators today. Markey, with his fine return of service and good net play, and Muehleisen, with the all-court game, which easily won him the District singles championship, should be the outstanding figures.

The match originally was scheduled for the Army and Navy Country Club as a feature of a clash between a team of Washington players against the Army Leech Cup squad, but was shifted back to Wardman yesterday.

The Washington-Leech Cup match will go on as scheduled today. The local team will be made up of Dooly Mitchell, Tom Mangan, Axel Graven, Gilbert Hunt, Frank Shore and Gene Hermann, while the Army will choose its players from Maj. Robert C. Van Vliet, Capt. J. H. Drake, Maj. J. A. Dorst, Maj. Randolph Gordon, Lieuts. Sherburne, Hedekin, Helms and others.

The Muehleisen-Robinson vs. Markey-Considine match will serve also the No. 1 doubles match of this Washington-Leech Cup affair.

Van Vliet, Godfrey Captain Service Team.

Louis I. Doyle, referee of the Leech Cup matches, to be played between the Army and Navy Saturday at the Army and Navy Country Club, yesterday announced the list of players in both camps. The teams will be captained, respectively, by Maj. Robert Van Vliet and Lieut. Comdr. Vincent H. Godfrey.

The Army team will wind up its training program today, and will make an aerial tour of nearby Army posts over Thursday and Friday.

The players:

ARMY—Maj. R. E. Van Vliet (Inf.), team captain; Maj. J. A. Dorst (Eng.), Maj. Randolph Gordon (Inf.), Capt. R. O. Bassett (Inf.), Capt. R. Z. Crane (Ord.), Capt. J. H. Drake (Inf.), Lieut. S. K. Robinson (A. C.), Lieut. D. D. Hedekin (Inf.), Lieut. J. Helms (A. C.), Lieut. P. K. Morrill (A. C.), Lieut. T. L. Sherburne (Inf.), Lieut. H. B. Thatcher (Inf.), Lieut. Millard Lewis (A. C.), Private Dolf Muehleisen (A. C.), Private R. A. Scruton (Inf.).

NAVY—Lieut. Comdr. V. H. Godfrey, team captain; Lieut. C. B. McVay (C. C.), Lieut. R. M. Watt, jr. (C. C.), Lieut. R. M. Graham, Lieut. A. K. Doyle, Lieut. D. Ketcham, Lieut. (j. g.) C. W. Smith (M. C.), Lieut. (j. g.) W. E. Howard (C. C.), Lieut. (j. g.) J. M. Farrin (C. C.), Lieut. (j. g.) J. K. McCue, Lieut. J. M. Worthington, Second Lieut. J. S. E. Young (U. S. M. C.), Capt. J. G. Coates.

The probable selections for the Army team are Muelheisen, Robinson, Van Vliet and either Drake, Dorst, Sherburne, or Hedekin, while Navy is likely to rely on Watt, McCue, Farrin, Smith and Howard or Graham. Four singles and three doubles will be played. Army won the cup in 1924 and 1925 and never since.

Tribe Beats Grove With Rally in Ninth

Philadelphia, July 12 (A.P.).—Putting on a two-run rally in the ninth inning today, the Cleveland Indians copped their third straight game from the Philadelphia Athletics, 7 to 6.

A home run by Eddie Morgan and successive doubles by Sewell and Cissell gave the Redskins their two tallies in the final round.

Lefty Grove, making his second start since he returned to duty, was pummelled for 18 hits in suffering his second straight defeat. Six of the blows made off the southpaw star were two-baggers.

MISS WALSH TO RUN FOR POLAND

Consulate Job Given Track Star to Gain Olympic Entry.

CLEVELAND, July 12 (A.P.).—Uncle Sam's talented adopted niece, Stella Walsh, of the cinder track, went back to the home folks today and henceforth will do any Olympic record-breaking for the glory of her native Poland.

Climaxing two weeks of indecision, the world's leading feminine track and field star this afternoon cast her lot with Poland on the strength of a position in the office of the Polish consulate in New York City.

Since her indefinite furloughing July 1 by the New York Central Railroad, Miss Walsh has kept her eye on the future Walsh bread and butter.

She inferred then that her allegiance in the Los Angeles Olympiad would crown the standard of the country making the most favorable business offer.

Miss Walsh said she would go to New York within the next few days to meet the Polish Olympic team, and from there would accompany it to Los Angeles.

In addition to nearly a dozen world track and field records, Miss Walsh will carry to the Olympics the virtual certainty of victory in the discus, 100-meter dash and 400-meter relay.

The Polish star's decision came less than 24 hours before she was to have appeared before a special Federal hearing to take out her naturalization papers.

She had been offered a position by the City of Cleveland municipal recreation department, the offer contingent upon her naturalization and naturalization in the United States Olympic Team.

However, Fred L. Steers, chairman of the National A. A. U. woman's track and field committee, telegraphed today to warn her that acceptance of a position in "physical education work" would make her ineligible for Olympic competition. It was not known if this influenced her final decision.

Stoneham May Sell Giants, Says Rumor

New York, July 12 (U.P.).—The baseball fraternity has begun to wonder what will happen to the New York Giants next year, now that they have proved the biggest upset of the National League season by virtually dropping out of the pennant race.

Many close followers of the Giants' misfortunes believe that Club President Charles A. Stoneham will sell out his holdings this winter because of the reported poor return on his investment at the Polo Grounds.

Norman Perry, the Indianapolis utility magnate, and John J. McGraw, former manager of the Giants, are understood to be planning a purchasing syndicate to take over the club's franchise and plant. If the Perry-McGraw deal goes through it would not be surprising to see McGraw take over the managership again.

2 Disqualified On Mat at Bolling

Shikat and Bartush Given Verdicts for Foes' Roughness.

Decisions to Sherry, Masked Marvel and Munn.

By BOB CONSIDINE.

UMPIRE BILLY JONES, the only rassling referee who fraternizes with the grapplers, hauled off and disqualified two of his pals last night at Bolling Field while a crowd of about 1,000 fretted and griped and couldn't quite make up its mind whether to be sore at the disqualifications or because of them.

Dick Shikat, whom Philadelphia papers say is training religiously in Philadelphia for his match there Friday night with Gus Sonnenberg, was the beneficiary of disqualification No. 1, when George McLeod was ruled off the course for his habit of stamping on the former champion's gnarled tootsies. Billy Bartush received the other disqualification, after gentlemanly Frank Speer, introduced by the floundering bridgework of Mugsy Morris as "The Golden Tornado from Georgia Tech "had knocked him cold by jumping up and down on his neck.

Bald Alex Aberg Bows to Sherry.

Jack Sherry, one of the best of the uncrowned champions, defeated Alex Aberg, the Russian rassler who is as bald as an electric light bulb, and wrestles a great deal like one, in eleven minutes. George Calza and Danny Winters went 30 minutes to a draw and the Masked Marvel revealed a rugged torso while beating Jim Monoghan in thirteen minutes.

McLeod confined all of his wrestling to pumping rights and lefts into Shikat's tummy and then edging close and jumping heavily on Shikat's toes. The rest of McLeod's science consisted of ramming his knee into the back of Shikat as the former champion fled around the ring. Jones disqualified him after several neck-locks, which were ruled strangle holds.

The Speer-Bartush match was about the most interesting, and more real blows were struck than in an average month of rassling shows. Once the two rolled out of the ring and began to pummel one another in impromptu fashion along the sidelines. Several women in the vicinity fled and the promoters woke up a couple of military police and dispersed the fighting, but neither of the boys seemed inclined to go back in the ring, so Bartush chased Speer halfway around the ring, planting rights to the shoulder blades.

They strangled each other during the rest of the match, and when Jones tried to break Speer's holds he was pushed severely aside, and once was thrown for a clean loss. Finally Speer got Bartush down, with a series of strangle locks and solar plexus blows, and finished him off with several jump-on-the-neck "holts." Jones pushed Speer aside, helped Bartush rise to a semivertical position and held up his hand, whereupon Bartush promptly sank to the mattress again.

Endurance Swimmer On Way to Record

At midnight last night Mrs. Elise Luippold, local long-distance swimmer, was going strong in her attempt to establish a world's endurance swimming record in the Airport Pool, where she dove in at 1 p. m. yesterday. Stopping only five minutes in each hour for rest and food, Mrs. Luippold expressed confidence of shattering the existing record of 70 hours. During rest periods she did not leave the pool, but tread water.

The feature of the Tricity Regatta will be the special race for all outboard engines built prior to 1931. The Coast Guard cutter Apache will be the official boat, and the course will be patrolled by the Coast Guard as in other years.

WHELAN, C.U. IN GRIDIRON RECORDS

Figures in 12 Principal Scoring Plays of 1931 Season.

NATIONAL recognition has been accorded Tom Whelan, high-stepping Catholic University halfback, in the 1932 edition of Spalding's Official Football Guide, which shows that the Cardinal star participated in no less than twelve of the principal scoring plays of the 1931 gridiron season.

The records serve to strengthen the opinion voiced by many local fans and experts that Whelan was the most effective college halfback from an attacking standpoint in the Capital area last fall. A total of fifteen players of Capital colleges and universities are named in the Guide as participants in the season's outstanding scoring plays, this group having taken part in 34 plays. Whelan thus is shown to have accounted for a fraction more than one-third of the notable local achievements.

Whelan's longest scoring run from scrimmage was a 75-yard gallop against City College, of New York. He had one for 70 and two others for 65 yards against Gallaudet, while against Providence College he scored on runs of 60, 55 and 50 yards. He also ran 55 yards from scrimmage to score against North Carolina State.

Among the principal scoring runs with intercepted passes, Whelan is credited with an 85-yard romp at the expense of North Carolina State.

Bozie Berger, of Maryland, and Oliver are credited with the longest scrimmage runs among Capital players, each having toted the ball 85 yards.

Wilmer Bradley, of Georgetown, turned in an 80-yard scoring dash. Others named among the long scrimmage touchdown scorers were Bus Sheary, Catholic; Ray Poppelman, Maryland; Dick King, Georgetown, and Frank Coogler, Finis Parrish, and John Doyle, all of George Washington.

Otts Kriemelmeyer, George Washington full back and a Washington native, is credited with a 65-yard scrimmage run. Al Woods, Maryland, is identified with an 80-yard sprint.

The longest scoring run in the country—109 yards—was made by Edmund Jack Burke, of Mississippi University, against the University of Alabama.

YANKS BEAT BROWNS ON 5 HITS

Chapman Gets Home Run, One On; Beating Stewart, 4-2.

NEW YORK, July 12 (A.P.).—Charley Ruffing's airtight pitching and Ben Chapman's timely home run in the sixth with a mate aboard gave the Yankees a close decision over the St. Louis Browns today, 4 to 2.

Wally Stewart held the leaders to five hits, but a pass to Ruth, Lazzeri's single and Chapman's four-bagger cost him three runs in one inning. Ruth scored the final run in the ninth, when he walked for the fourth time and later crossed the plate on Stewart's balk. The Browns could not get more than one hit an inning off Ruffing.

U. S. Swimmers Seek Olympic Berths Today

Cincinnati, Ohio, July 12 (A.P.).—America's greatest array of swimming talent tomorrow will open a battle for the right to carry the Stars and Stripes against the cream of the world in the Olympiad.

Twenty-four will be selected for Uncle Sam's men's team. There are more than 90 aspirants for the berths, ranging in age from 14 to 42.

Only preliminary heats will be run tomorrow at the Coney Island pool. They are for the 1,500-meter and 100-meter free-style events. The finals and other events will start Thursday and continue through Saturday.

French Delegation of 63 Olympic Athletes Arrive

Martin, 800-Meter Star, and Keller, 400-Meter Entrant, Head Squad; Watch Hampden, of England, Warns Martin.

By EDWARD J. NEIL.

NEW YORK, July 12 (A.P.).—The tricolor waved on high over New York's waters today as 63 athletes of France, headed by vigorous little Sera Martin and long-legged Jean Keller, sailed into the spotlight that has been shining for days on the stream of invading Olympic athletes.

Excited and thrilled by another loud reception, the French competitors, with 25 officials to take care of them, arrived on the liner Lafayette and promptly bustled off into the city for a continual round of workouts and recreation that will fill their time before they leave for Los Angeles Thursday by way of Washington and a White House reception.

Ten teams made up the delegation, consisting of track and field, rowing, boxing, cycling, fencing, equestrian, weight lifting, wrestling, swimming and yachting.

Natty in gray slack flannel suits and blue berets, the official Olympic uniform of the French Team, most of the youngsters, on their first trip to America, stared and pointed, jabbed companions and sputtered excitedly as buses rolled them through the canyons of New York's streets for the first time.

But it was an old story for Sera Martin, fleet little middle-distance ace, who campaigned here a couple of seasons ago with considerable success. He pointed out the sights to his companions, advised the best kind of spikes to wear for their afternoon workout at the New York University, and still had time to discuss the situation in general.

"This fellow Eastman," he said in French, "ah, he is the man we must all beat in the 400 meters, but let me warn you. England is sending a great quarter-miler named Hampsen. In that last 100 yards * * * poof * * * he is gone."

Martin probably will concentrate on the 400 meters himself, leaving to Jean Keller, a lanky blond youngster and his inseparable companion, the job of taming a great international 800 meters field. Keller beat Martin by a foot for the French national 800 meters title a few weeks ago and clocked in 1:53 2-5. In Martin's last practice workout, however, he was timed in 1:52⅘, smart time for the distance.

The French teams plan to leave New York Thursday night, and stop in Washington Friday. On their way across the continent they plan a workout in Salt Lake City.

In the Wake Of the Game

LOU FONSECA'S butter-fingered White Sox end their second 1932 visit here this afternoon. In their previous series with the Nationals they managed to win one game out of four, and so, if they run to form, they must win today. Manager Walter Johnson will call on Monte Weaver, who is seeking his twelfth victory, to upset the dope, while the veteran, Ted Lyons, is expected to oppose Monte.

Instead of returning here from the baseball meeting at Cleveland Monday, President Clark Griffith went to Chattanooga to see what Lookout players might have a chance to make good with the Nationals next season.

Jim Tennant, a right-handed pitcher, formerly with the New York Giants, is trying for a berth with the Nationals. The Giants optioned him to Bridgeport one too many times, and so Baseball Commissioner Kenesaw Mountain Landis declared him a free agent. He is a hefty 6-footer with a hop on his fast ball.

Cronin, who went over toward second to make a fine gloved-hand stop to rob Sullivan of a hit in the first, opened the second with a single to left. It was the Nats' first hit of the game.

After the Sox forged into a seven-run lead, Fothergill was yanked from left and benched, Seeds moving over and Funk going to center. This change probably robbed the Nats of at least another run and Myer of a hit, for the Nat second-sacker sent Seeds far back for a fly in the home second to end the round with Nats on first and third. It is doubtful if the slow Fothergill would even have gotten near the looper.

Harris raced back to the fence to make an overhead grab of Funk's liner, opening round 4.

Kuhel took Blue's bounder, which skidded off the initial sack, with his gloved hand in the fifth, but lost out in the race with the batter to the sack.

Faber did not issue a pass until the ninth and then he doled out two, which helped the Nats knot the score.

Red Sox Defeat Tigers In Pitchers' Duel, 3-2

Boston, July 12 (A.P.).—The Red Sox made it two-all in their five-game series with Detroit by taking a 3-to-2 victory off Vic Sorrell today in a pitchers' battle.

Bob Kline, who opposed Sorrell on the mound, allowed eight hits, while his team made only five off the Detroit hurler. The Sox, however, got away to a lead in the first frame on walks to Johnson and Olson, Watwood's bunt and a clean single to right by Smead Jolley.

ARLINGTON PARK, Ill., July 12 (A.P.).—George D. Widener's Evening, held as a powerful contender for the $70,000 classic Saturday, wound up ninth in a ten-horse field today as S. W. Labrot's Springsteel won the $2,500 added Sheridan Purse, a trial event for the main event of Arlington Park meeting.

Evening had no excuse, going into the stretch in third position, only to fade completely from the picture. J. Burke hustled Springsteel into the lead shortly after the rise of the barrier and kept his mount out in front all the way to win over Rehoboth by two lengths. E. R. Bradley's Bubble Up saved the show place.

Evening was a 2-to-5 favorite as they went to the post. Springsteel was almost ignored and paid $26.96 to win. The time for the mile and an eighth was 1:50 4-5.

Latonia Feature

To Dixiana.

Latonia, Ky., July 12 (A.P.).—Dixiana's Spartan Lady, which has been consistently close up in all of her engagement, including several stakes, showed a smart performances to account for the Tiger Lily purse, today's feature offering for juvenile fillies at 5½ furlongs. F. C. McAtee's Billie's Orphan finished second and Audley Farm's Codetta was third. Nine contested with Easter Box and Codetta coupled as an entry.

Alertly handled at the post, Billie's Orphan was away winging and cut out the early pace under steadying restraint. Codetta was closest in attendance to the far turn with F. P. Letellier's Marie Jean racing in third place and Spartan Lady in contending position.

Turning for home, Billie's Orphan took a clear advantage, but Finnerty was making his move on Spartan Lady. In the stretch Spartan Lady staged an excellent burst of speed and caught the pacemaker to win going away. Billie's Orphan outgamed the tiring Codetta for the show.

Spartan Lady was an odds-on favorite with the big week-day crowd, paying dividends of $3.78 for each $2 mutuel ticket. She covered the distance in 1:07 4-5, excellent time considering that the track still was a trifle dead from Sunday night's rain.

JOE AND ASBESTOS

(Watch Sunday's Post for New Secret Code)

—By Ken Kling

Eskimo won at $6.46 yesterday and Asbestos again just missed hitting the $70 mark when his other horse, Hilena, ran second. The roll went up $4.50 on the day and is now $65.40. The code horse lost. Joe's roll is $241.25.

AT THE POST

—with Bill Bennings—

DEAR AL: ARLINGTON PARK, CHICAGO, JULY 12.

Not much to write home about here today. I put them in the money at telephone numbers, but got more kick out of Bag Smasher's victory at Kenilworth than anything here. Had the dope on this one and should have made it stronger. Regula Baddun and Finnic were my other winners.

At other tracks today these have the Bennings stamp of approval: Moonphase, Delicacy, Tewsenelda, Sour Mash, Ellice, Sun Gros.

BILL.

FIRST RACE—VOLWOOD scratched yesterday to take this group. Has the speed to take care of these, I do believe. FOUR PENCE and BIANOZ will battle it out for the place money.

SECOND RACE—LADY BROADCAST gets one more time from me. Gets in here with only 100 pounds and so rigged looks like a live animal. PRINCE ATHELING, the likely favorite, appears second best, with ERVAST the third one.

THIRD RACE—MAGNIFICO and Sonny Workman should take care of this gang. Has worked well here and needs only to run his race. LADDER went wrong in Maryland, but may take second in this. SILVERDALE for the show end.

FOURTH RACE—DIS DAT may not belong in this field. However, this one has done a number of tricks for me and another may be the winning of this rate. BIG BRAND, a bang-up second the last time, and WAYLAYER will have to be beaten.

FIFTH RACE—WISE ANNE is a smart miss that has fast races to her credit. Several of the others in this race, namely, MISGUIDE, RED WHISK, CROWNING GLORY, are other speedsters. However, I'm forced to put the little filly on top.

SIXTH RACE—JAMESTOWN and FINITE, the entry, seem to have this mile test locked up. Either can do it. MORSEL and SUNMELUS look like the ones to furnish the chief battle.

SEVENTH RACE—SEARINGTON, which has been running backward for most of this season, appears to have found his racnig legs in the last week. Turned in some fine trials and gave a good exhibition the last time out. LA SALLE and DODGSON for what is left.

MAT DEFEAT IS PROMISED GROBMEIER

Local Favorite Due Test From Garibaldi Tomorrow.

GINO GARIBALDI, the roughest rassler to hit this section since the early days of Terrible Rudy Dusek, will attempt to relieve lanky Fred Grobmeier of his burdensome title of "Washington's Fair-Haired Boy" tomorrow night at the stadium, under what Matchmaker Joe Turner hopes will be pleasant skies.

The meeting between the locally up-and-coming Garibaldi and the declining Grobmeier was scheduled for last Thursday night, but was ruined by rain. Tonight's card will be the same as that scheduled for a week ago, except that Chief White Feather and Marshall Blackstock have been sold down the river in deference to Jim McMillen and Floyd Marshall.

The rest of the card is made up of Pat O'Shocker and a recent convert from amateur ranks, Vic Christy; Frank Brunowicz and Jack Zarnos, and the always hard-working Rudy Dusek, who meets Lou Plummer.

Rudy Out to Avenge Brother.

Plummer, who alternately claims Yale and Notre Dame as his harbor of learning, beat Rudy Dusek's little brother, Ernie, not long ago, and the promoters are classing Rudy with a real pachyderm and claiming that he has never forgotten the way in which Plummer beat his bruvver. Rudy was probably nowhere in that section of the country at the time, but he has proof that Lou was very rough, and he threatens to be the same tonight. At least that's the story that emanates from the hotel fortress of the wrestling corporation.

The Garibaldi-Grobmeier match should be as good as the Garibaldi-Dusek affair two weeks ago—which established a new high for thrills and blood letting. Garibaldi is one of the few real great wrestlers left.

SEVENTH RACE—One

Stocks Almost Unchanged In Day of Narrow Trading

Small Net Losses Appear at Close; Packing Shares Record Gains.

New York, July 12 (A.P.).—Stocks trudged through a stale, narrow market today. Enough selling appeared toward the close to give a number of leaders small net losses, but in few instances did declines amount to a point, and the averages showed almost a standoff. Sales were somewhat larger than yesterday, totaling 690,176 shares.

Auburn Auto softened more than 5 points net after an early gain of about 2. Brooklyn-Manhattan Transit skidded a couple of points, while American Telephone, American Tobacco "B," Case, U. S. Steel preferred and Coca Cola lost atbout 1 each. Rails were dull and fairly steady.

A few packing company shares improved, joined by sugar and shoe stocks. Preferred issues found the market thin on both sides; there were several advances. Laclede Gas preferred, appearing for the first time this year, broke 50 points, to 40, but reduced its loss to 42.

Century Ribbon preferred jumped 15, but then fell back partially. U. S. Steel common, American Can, Westinghouse, Consolidated Gas and Woolworth eased. Procter & Gamble was firm. The market closed before announcement of that issue's reduced dividend had been made.

A drop of $222,000,000 in loans and investments of reporting Federal Reserve member banks told the familiar story of continued defiation. Security loans were down $113,000,000 in the week ended July 6, but brokers noted that this liquidation had been accomplished without depressing the security markets. Reduction of investment holdings reflected in part the usual let-down after the window-dressing period.

Farmers Grain Backed By Debt Funding Pact

Chicago, Ill., July 12 (A.P.).—The Farmers National Grain Corporation, grain trading agency of the Federal Government, tonight announced a debt funding agreement with the Federal Farm Board designed to place the corporation in an impregnable financial position for ten years.

The corporation's total debt to the Farm Board as of last March 31 was $16,295,394. Under terms of the funding agreement, the debt will be reduced to $16,000,000 by next November 30. Thereafter, the corporation will pay specified sums on May 31 of each year, completing payments in 1942.

CREDIT ASSOCIATION NAMES W. J. TASTET

Louis M. Hewlett Is Chosen Vice President; Acting Secretary Retained.

By THOMAS M. CAHILL.

Waldo J. Tastet, official and director of Fries, Beall & Sharp Co. and vice president of the Washington Association of Credit Men, was elevated to the presidency of the latter organization at its annual meeting yesterday at the Raleigh Hotel.

Louis M. Hewlett, secretary and assistant treasurer of Griffith-Consumers Co., was elected vice president. Mr. Hewlett has served the association for many years as a director and has been active in its work since organization.

Directors elected include Charles W. Clayton, F. P. May Hardware Co.; R. Jesse Chaney, Commercial National Bank; Thorpe G. Drain, Rosslyn Steel & Cement Co.; A. E. Kostulski, Graybar Electric Co.; Maurice H. Mazo, Mazo-Lerch Co., Inc.; Lister T. Watts, Standard Oil Co. of New Jersey; P. W. White, National Electrical Supply Co.; Eugene C. Baczenas, Washington Tobacco Co., and P. L. Williams, The Washington Post Co. Other directors whose terms have not yet expired are John N. Auth, N. Ruth Provision Co.; F. W. Harper, E. Morrison Paper Co.; W. R. Little, Evening Star Newspaper Co.; John A. Reilly, Federal-American National Bank & Trust Co., and E. H. Ruark, The Bradstreet Co.

Sessions Is Reelected.

Immediately after adjournment of the meeting, De Forest E. Sessions, who has been connected with the association for the past eighteen months, was reelected acting secretary, and William Gordon Buchanan was reelected treasurer.

Charles W. Clayton, F. P. May Hardware Co., retiring president, was paid tribute by the association for his work during the past two years. A "tourobe" was presented to him by the association in appreciation of his good work during his term of office.

In his report, Mr. Sessions recommended among other things that members individually assist the membership committee in securing additional members for the year 1932, feeling that the services offered by the association are of great value in handling credit problems.

Educational Work Stressed.

He also recommended that the educational work of the association be stressed during the new term of administration, stating that this work is one of the most important features of the association.

Mr. Tastet, the new president, has been active in association work since 1922, at which time he was credit manager of John H. Wilkins Co. Since 1924 he has been associated with Fries, Beall & Sharp Co., as credit manager and director. Mr. Tastet has also been a trustee and treasurer of the Adjustment Bureau since 1927. By the election of Mr. Tastet the association named one of the youngest credit executives in its history to direct its activities.

Charles H. Swift Elected.

Chicago, July 12 (A.P.).—Charles H. Swift has been elected president of Swift International, succeeding Edward F. Swift, deceased.

Railroads Plan Store-Door Deliveries in Truck Battle

New York, July 12 (A.P.).—Trunk line railroads serving the New York metropolitan area were working out plans today to put a store-door delivery and pick-up freight service into effect on September 15.

The innovation, it was assumed, was in answer to the challenge of motor truck competition. Plans for the new service, which have been the subject of debate in railroad circles for over ten years, were announced at a joint meeting of shippers and carriers in the Pennsylvania station.

An added charge will be made for the movement of freight from the railway terminal to the ultimate delivery points. A similar charge will be made on the pick-up of freight for shipment out of New York.

It was emphasized, however, that utilization of the new service would be optional with the shipper. Proposed rates provide a scale of charges for the delivery and pick-up service ranging from 6 cents a hundredweight for shipments of 36,000 pounds and more to 20 cents a hundredweight for shipments ranging from 10,000 to 14,000 pounds.

U.S. BONDS ADVANCE IN FIRMER MARKETS

Corporate Issues in Demand With Moderate Gains; Foreign List Mixed.

New York, July 12 (A.P.).—The market for U. S. Government bonds today responded enthusiastically to the Senate's passage of the Glass bill, which would permit national banks to issue currency against certain classes of Federal obligations.

Increased buying of Governments, notably the Treasury 3¾s, accounted primarily for the gain in the day's total transactions over yesterday's sales figures. Turnover involved $11,039,000 par value of bonds against $10,268,000 yesterday.

Except for the Treasury 4s, which slipped back 1-32 point, and the Liberty fourth 4¼s and the Treasury 3¾ of 1940-43, which were unchanged, the entire list of Federals went ahead.

Other Issues Gain.

The Treasury 3¼s moved up 17-32 and the Treasury 3s advanced 18-32, while a transaction in the inactive registered 3s showed a gain of 1 12-32 points.

Corporate bonds were in fair demand, average prices of industrials, rails and utilities all moving a fraction higher. Gains of 1 or more points were made by issues of the Santa Fe, Allegheny Corporation, Baltimore & Ohio, Boston & Maine, Canadian National, Canadian Pacific, Rock Island, Rio Grande, and Northern Pacific, among others.

Armour 5½s, American Beet Sugar 6s, General Cable 5½s, Inland Steel 4½s, and National Dairy 5¼s were up a point or more.

Utilities Join Rise.

Public Service Electric 4½s, New England Telephone 4s, Columbia Gas 5s, and International Telephone 5s were up about a like margin.

The foreign list was churned up considerable. In late trading, German government issues recovered a fraction of their earlier losses which had ranged around 3 points.

Indicative of the cross currents was the day's action of Austrian government bonds. The 7s of 1943 moved up 1 point, while the 7s of 1957 were breaking 4. Copenhagen and Cuban Republic 5s were off around 4 to 5 points, while Bergen City 5s and Dresden City 7s rallied 6½ and 8½ points, respectively

CURB TRADING FAILS TO ESTABLISH TREND

Many Shares Record Gains, While Other Leading Issues Sag at Close.

New York, July 12 (A.P.).—Curb market shares drifted uncertainly, failing to establish a trend, in another extremely quiet session today, in which the volume still held to about 60,000 shares.

Glen Alden Coal was a strong feature, rising to 10½, and closing at 9¾, up 2⅛ net, presumably in response to the recent increase of 20 cent sa ton in hard coal prices, effective August 1.

Deere rose one-half point, ignoring the slump in wheat, and some of the packing stocks were again firm. Swift & Co. rising a fraction, and Van Camp preferred a point. Swift International, however, reacted. Parker Rust sagged a point to a new low, possibly reflecting diminishing automobile production. Sherwin Williams sold at 20, off 4 and a new bottom.

Oils were somewhat mixed. Gulf advanced a point, and among low-priced issued, Darby Petroleum and Salt Creek Producers were up fractionally. Standards of Indiana and Kentucky, however, were off minor fractions.

On the whole, last week's substantial gain in crude production was apparently without market influence. Utilities were also irregular. American Gas & Electric was up a fraction, while Electric Bond & Share sagged ⅛ to 6. Associated Gas A duplicated its low at 11⅛. Duke Power declined 2 points to 31, in a small turnover.

World Oil Conference Seeks 24 Per Cent Cut

Paris, July 12 (A.P.).—After a day's discussion of production limitation, delegates to the International Oil Conference adjourned this afternoon until tomorrow morning.

They are trying to agree on a 24 per cent production cut, and if they can agree they intend to make proposals to the smaller Roumanian companies which hitherto have declined to limit their output.

GRAIN VALUES DROP IN LIQUIDATING RUSH

Government Crop Estimates and Bumper Production in Europe Blamed.

Chicago, July 12 (A.P.).—Hit hard by big official estimates of 1932 spring crop production, all deliveries of wheat collapsed today to fresh bottom price records for the season.

Not only were United States Government figures on spring wheat much larger than expected, but the Canadian government report indicated a spring crop condition only 1 degree less than perfect. Domestic farm reserve stocks of wheat, officially given as 72,000,000 bushels, exerted an additional bearish influence, and so too did dwindling of export demand for wheat from North America.

Wheat closed unsettled, ⅞ to 1¼ under yesterday's finish, corn ⅛ off to ¼ up; oats, ¼ to ⅜ down, and provisions, unchanged to 12 cents decline.

Selling Rush Ensues.

A general rush to sell took place in the wheat pit as soon as trading began. It was in vain specialists pointed out that wheat values were already below the cost of production.

Intensifying the bearish effect of bumper spring wheat prospects, strikingly in contrast with almost a crop failure in spring wheat last year, were European advices today that overseas countries generally have good crops.

Export business in North American wheat this week was shown to have been curtailed more than 1,500,000 bushels as compared with the corresponding week last year.

Corn and oats showed a steadier tone than wheat, the Government corn crop estimate being less than expected. On downturns, however, September and December oats touched new low prices for the season. Provisions responded to a setback in hog values.

Soviet American Buying Declines to $5,549,000

New York, July 12.—Amtorg Trading Corporation, commercial agent for the Russian Soviet Union, reports that its purchases in the United States in the first half of 1932 totaled $5,549,000, against $40,593,000 over the same period of 1931, a decline of 86 per cent.

The corporation said the shrinkage was due partly to lack of credit facilities here comparable to those available in Europe.

Soviet buying in Germany increased, and new long-term credits in England, it was said, had stimulated Russian purchases there in the last few months.

Wall Street Briefs

New York, July 12 (A.P.).—Wall street understands that Columbia Pictures will soon announce completion of contracts with Radio-Keith-Orpheum and West Coast Theaters for use of Columbia products in those two circuits.

It is reported in railroad circles that the New York Central is considering a five-day week for several clerical departments.

After several advances, Bradstreet's Index of Business Defaults shows a slight decline this week. Failures in the week ended July 7 totaled 505, compared with 625 a week ago and 362 a year ago. Liabilities dropped 27 per cent. This showing, says the review, is due to fewer bank suspensions since the recent flurry of Chicago closings.

The New York Cotton Exchange service estimates cotton consumption by domestic mills last month at 312,000 bales. The Census Bureau reported May consumpiton at 332,000 bales.

COTTON AGAIN LOSES IN RUSH OF SELLING

October Price Fixed at 5.67, or 15 Points Net Lower; Liverpool Covers.

New York, July 12 (A.P.).—Cotton sold off today under liquidation and scattered selling promoted by favorable weather news and absence of aggressive support.

Trade buying and covering absorbed offerings on a scale-down, but the lowest prices were reached in the late trading when October sold at 5.67, or 15 points net lower and 55 points below the high of last week. The general market closed barely steady at net declines of 14 to 15 points.

The opening was 3 to 6 points lower on near-month liquidation and scattered selling of later deliveries.

Bales Against July.

Notices estimated at about 11,100 bales, were issued against July contracts and seemed to bring in considerable selling which was absorbed at a moderate widening of the differences by trade buying. There was also heavy switching from July to later months.

The liquidation of July contracts tapered off during the afternoon, but very little demand for that position developed although the differences which had widened early, narrowed again in the later trading.

The New York Cotton Exchange service estimates domestic consumption for June at 312,000 bales, compared with 454,000 last year, but these figures seemed to be without much effect on the market.

Liverpool cables reported covering, continental buying and calling in that market. Exports today, 19,947, making 8,539,411 so far this season.

Morgan Pool Calls $10,000,000 Capital

Tidy Paper Profit Shown Since Group Organized to Buy Securities.

New York, July 12 (A.P.).—The $100,000,000 Morgan-sponsored American Securities Investing Corporation, which was formed several weeks ago for the purpose of investing in premier securities, today issued its first call for payment on the subscriptions of its members.

The call is for an initial payment of $10,000,000, or 10 per cent of the total subscribed by the member institutions. Prior to today's call, it had been explained that the so-called bond pool would buy bonds against open credits, and would not call upon its participants to provide cash to cover these purchases until a substantial amount of bonds had been acquired.

No idea was given as to the amount of purchases yet made by the corporation. It was indicated that the amount might be either more or less than the amount of the current call. Since the corporation began making its purchases, the "bond pool" now shows a tidy paper profit.

Lignite Shipments Increase.

Bismarck, N. Dak., July 12 (A.P.).—Lignite shipments from North Dakota mines in the five weeks ended June 25 totaled 37,071 tons, nearly 1,000 more than in the like period last year, State Railroad Commission compilations today showed. Interstate shipments totaled 8,006 tons and intrastate tonnage was 29,065 during the period.

HOG RISE REFLECTED BY PACKING HOUSES

Bonds Gain and Activity Awakens in Hope of Sustained Upturn.

In 1929, when meat prices held reasonably steady, the four packing concerns reported aggregate net income of $22,865,000. In 1930, the total was $17,910,000.

In 1931, due primarily to a drast

ECKINGTON CENTER FORMALLY OPENED

Exercises Are Attended by 1,500; Athletic Demonstrations Presented.

Presenting nearly as many attractions as an eight-ring circus, everything from colonial dancing to demonstrations in how to play tennis and soccer football, the Eckington Recreation Center had its formal opening last night on the heights of the North Capitol community before more than 1,500 persons.

The center embraces McKinley High School, the Langley Junior High School and the Emory elementary school. Special programs will be offered every Tuesday and Friday night. The pool and playgrounds will be open to the public every day.

New Departure.

The Eckington Center constitutes a new departure in local community affairs, as it is the first time coordinated efforts have been advanced by the Office of Public Buildings and Grounds, the District Department of Playgrounds and the Community Center Department of Public Schools.

The feature of last night's exercises was a program on the colonial terrace and plaza of McKinley High. It consisted of the Job's Daughters Drill Team, folk dances by the District Playground Department, girls of Bloomingdale Playground, under direction of Elizabeth Mahon, and the girls of Happy Hollow Playground, under direction of Kathleen Fisher.

Demonstrations Given.

The following athletic demonstrations were given: Tennis, by Robert Considine, former District tennis champion; basket ball instruction, Joseph Mitchell, former George Washington University coach; track, Harry Helme, former intercollegiate 2-mile champion; football, Maurice Dubofsky, former Georgetown University captain; soccer, Louis Mitchell, and baseball, Bernard McCarty, Georgetown University pitcher on the champion nine of 1922.

Dances of other days were offered by Ye Olde Tyme Dancing Club; of the Columbia Heights Community Center, and by Alice Louise Hunter, of the Community Center Department. Moving pictures were shown in the stadium by the Community Center Department, Harold Snyder in charge. A life-saving demonstration was given by the District Chapter of the Red Cross, Ira Lee Law in charge.

First Hiring Requested Under Saving Schedule

The District Commissioners yesterday sent to the Bureau of the Budget the names of a proposed school principal and a playground caretaker as the first appointees since the passage of the economy act, which provides that no vacancies shall be filled except by executive order of the President.

These appointees, whose names were not revealed, were recommended by the District personnel board, which this week assumed supervision of the filling of all vacancies in the District service.

COMPANY TO DEFER BUILDING GAS TANK

Sperry Submits to Utilities Group Plan to Provide Service Otherwise.

Temporary cessation of the controversy over a site for the proposed holder of the Washington Gas Light Co. appeared imminent yesterday after Marcy Sperry, president, had submitted a detailed statement to the Public Utilities Commission explaining why the gas company had withdrawn its application for permission to erect a 10,000,000 cubic foot tank at Riggs road and the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad northeast.

Maj. Gen. Mason M. Patrick, chairman of the commission, explained that Mr. Sperry had assured him that the gas company would be able to provide adequate service next winter through the addition of certain apparatus, designed to increase pressure, at the east plant and through the purchase of additional natural gas from the Columbia Gas & Electric Corporation.

The commission took the matter under advisement pending an analysis of the statement. Gen. Patrick said if the statement was found to be correct, no effort could be made to compel the gas company to erect any storage tank as ordered several months ago.

Mr. Sperry told Gen. Patrick it would be a physical impossibility for the gas company to build a 5,000,000 cubic foot tank, as ordered by the commission, by January 1.

A copy of the revised contract between the Washington Gas Light Co. and the Columbia Gas & Electric Corporation also was furnished. This will be studied by legal counsel of the utilities body before any action is taken, Gen. Patrick said.

A bill is now pending in Congress to close Virginia avenue southeast, adjacent to the east plant, so that a 5,000,000 cubic foot tank may be erected there. More than a dozen citizens associations have protested against the location of a tank either at the northeast or the southeast sites.

REGULATIONS MADE FOR CREDIT UNIONS

Corporation Counsel's Office Drafts Plan to Supervise Organizations.

Machinery to set in motion the credit union act, recently passed by Congress, was started yesterday by the District Commissioners upon recommendation of Acting Corporation Counsel Vernon E. West.

Pointing out that the act provides for the incorporation, upon approval of the Commissioners, of "mutual financial organizations which may sell up to 200 shares of par value, not to exceed $10, to any of its members and may make loans to its members at rates not to exceed 1 per cent per month, but may not receive deposits," Mr. West proposed:

1. That the District superintendent of insurance be directed to receive and review applications for the organization of credit unions.

2. That the corporation counsel and the superintendent of insurance be directed to confer with the Comptroller of the Currency and to recommend to the Commissioners "rules and regulations governing the approval of applications by the Comptroller and the supervision of credit unions."

3. That pending the issuance of the initial license to credit unions at present operating in the District (seven in number) such credit unions be required to file applications and deposit the $15 fee for license, and be permitted to operate.

Man at Bottling Works Convicted in Rum Case

Elias Duke, 40, of the Sunshine Bottling Works, 17 N street northeast, was convicted in Police Court yesterday of second offense possession of liquor as the result of a raid made on the bottling plant in April.

Government chemists testified that 336 bottles of beer, containing slightly more than 3 per cent alcohol, were found in the place. William A. Keys, also 40, was convicted with Duke, but the charge against him was first offense possession.

SIX TO GET MEDALS FOR HEROIC SERVICE

Three Policemen and Three Fire Fighters Cited for Conspicuous Bravery.

The names of three firemen and three policemen, whose conspicuous and heroic deeds in the fiscal year of 1932 won for them the yearly medal awards, were announced yesterday by Gen. John A. Johnston, chairman of the committee of awards.

For the Police Department the gold medal winner was Private Thomas D. Bacon, of the First Precinct. Although "covered" by the pistols of two men whom he followed after they had entered a building near the Second National Bank at 509 Seventh street northwest, Bacon closed in on the pair. He was shot once in the foot and a second time in the thigh. Nevertheless, he overpowered one of the men and placed him under arrest. The other escaped, but was later arrested.

Private James F. White, of No. 21 Engine Company, received the Fire Department gold medal. He was on duty at the Navy Yard on Navy Day when a gang plank collapsed leading from the wharf to a cruiser and several persons were thrown into the water. White plunged in and rescued two.

Battalion Chief John R. Groves, of the Fire Department, was given a silver medal for the rescue of an aged man trapped by fire at 1456 Park road last November. The police silver medal went to Capt. Michael L. Raedy, now retired, for stopping a runaway team of four horses just as it was about to stampede into a crowd at Seventh street and Pennsylvania avenue northwest. The incident occurred during the Labor Day firemen's parade.

Private Benjamin A. Dye, Second Precinct, won the bronze medal for the rescue of a 3-year-old colored boy from the coal chute in the rear of Cardoza Business High School, while the Fire Department bronze award went to Capt. Christopher B. Bartelmes, of No. 9 Engine Company. He saved a 2-year-old child from a fire at 1833 Fourteenth street last December.

10 Years Given to Man In Drug Store Robbery

Pleading guilty to an indictment charging him with robbing a chain drug store at Connecticut avenue and S street northwest, Anthony Owens yesterday was given a ten-year term when he asked Justice F. D. Letts, in the District Supreme Court, for immediate sentence. William T. Hardy, who also admitted his guilt, will be sentenced later.

Three women, arrested with Hardy and Owens, have been exonerated, although they are under indictment. Assistant United States Attorney James Kirkland indicated the Government probably would dismiss the charges against the three, Loretta Sutherland, Leona Van Upperman and Clementina Cavalier.

Poison-Sprayed Crop Sale Laid to Farmer

Upon complaint of Health Officer William C. Fowler that he was marketing cabbage which had been sprayed with arsenic, C. C. Branch, farmer of Toano, Va., was arrested yesterday and placed under $200 bond for a hearing this morning in Police Court.

Branch was found bringing 33 crates of adulterated cabbages into the District, according to Dr. Fowler, after he had been warned when found with 94 crates of arsenic-sprayed cabbage on June 24.

Driver Draws $170 Fine On Nine Traffic Counts

On nine charges of violating the traffic regulations, Harry Diggs, colored, 24, yesterday was fined $170 in Police Court. The charges included driving past four stop signs, dead tags, speeding and failure to show permit.

After Diggs' arrest a case of alleged liquor was found in the car.

ZOO RECEIVES RARE SUMATRAN ANIMALS

An animal "bonanza" yesterday was ushered into the National Zoological Park collection here by Dr. William M. Mann and his corps of assistants.

A surly python, 27 feet long, reputedly the largest in captivity, is regarded as the most interesting of the jungle "nuggets" garnered from the teeming tropical forest land of Sumatra by an American amateur collector.

Rare snakes and reptiles in profusion, two baby orangoutangs, three gibbons, an exotic group of Sumatran birds and two Sumatran tigers—male and female—are included in the collection.

The tigers were placed in the same cage with some trepidation by Dr. Mann, who said their type is generally hostile at first meeting. However, to a medley of roaring and screeching in the populous lion house the pair took kindly to each other.

Jungle Love Affair.

"They must have been sweethearts in the jungle," remarked Dr. Mann as he watched the pair sniff cordially and exchange licking caresses.

To the reptile inclosure at the Zoo were introduced, among others, a pair of kraits, representatives of one of the most deadly of snake groups. The cobra is said to be a "weak sister," compared to the vicious krait. This pair is said to be the only one in captivity, the type hitherto having failed to respond to diets furnished them in civilized habitats. Two hooded cobras are in the reptile aggregation.

Six ruby-hued blood pythons were among the snake collection. Only two have ever been captured before. A half-dozen mangrove snakes, poisonous, but usually amiable, also were installed in the snakehouse.

Other Rare Specimen.

Another rare specimen was the Sumatran water snake, known as the elephant-trunk snake. The newcomer at the Zoo is the second to be held in captivity.

The orangoutangs are about a year old, exceptionally tame and in good health. It is expected they will be the last of this high type of anthropoid to come out of Sumatra for a long period, inasmuch as the Dutch government has prohibited their capture. They bring the total of anthropoids at the Zoo to five, representative of all categories of known anthropoids.

The three gibbons are from the lowest species of apes. Two are adult and black faced and one is a white-faced infant.

Many Feathered Inhabitants.

Feathered inhabitants of the Sumatran jungle also were present in numbers among the new Zoo colonists. Quail, starlings and cuckoos, as well as birds as yet unclassified, were quartered in the birdhouse. Two crocodiles and a number of rare smaller reptiles were included in the collection.

The entire collection was presented to the Zoo by L. Ross Freeman, head of the United States Rubber Factory in Sumatra. Freeman began his collection only two years ago, after being stationed in Sumatra for several years.

Communicating with Dr. Mann, Freeman obtained intercession by the American Government with Dutch authorities for the capture and exportation of animals usually under rigid protection.

$1-Down Auto Costs Driver 60-Day Term

An automobile he had just purchased for a down payment of $1—with four more payments at weekly intervals—got William Stoney into much trouble when it ran out of gasoline at Seventeenth and K streets northwest. Policeman H. B. Mohler investigated, found incorrect tags and arrested Stoney.

Yesterday in Police Court he was given 60 days in jail.

BURNING PARAFFIN KILLS WOMAN, 76

Flames Drawn Into Lungs Cause of Her Death, Physicians Say.

Burns she received when paraffin she was melting for preserving ignited yesterday morning, proved fatal last night to a 76-year-old woman.

Mrs. Sarah R. Moudy was taken from her home at 1217 Hamilton street to Emergency Hospital and later transferred to Sibley Hospital, where she died at 7:12 p. m.

Physicians said she had not been badly burned about the body, but had drawn some of the flames into her lungs, which caused death.

The flames were thrown back into her face and body by the wind. Her clothing ignited. Mrs. Moudy's screams attracted Edwin Brooks, of 1228 Hamilton street northwest, who beat out the blazing clothing.

Mrs. Moudy lived alone at the Hamilton street address. Her husband died about three years ago. She was a native of Iowa City, Iowa, but had lived in Washington most of her life.

ABOUT THE SHOWSHOPS

With NELSON B. BELL

IT begins to look as if Harry M. Crandall, who ran an 80-seat "shooting gallery" into the largest and most pretentious string of motion picture theaters in the Washington territory and then sold them to the Stanley Co. of America, had retained the Midas touch.

If invitational previews and first-day auguries mean anything, his "Pantheon de la Guerre," the mammoth panorama of the World War now on public exhibition at New Jersey avenue and C street, is headed for a prosperous year in the National Capital prior to its transference to the Chicago World's Fair next summer. A box office line of generous proportions had formed yesterday morning long before the ticket window was opened at 10 a. m., and throughout the morning, afternoon and evening the steady flow of patronage kept up until the first day's attendance figures had written themselves down well into the thousands at the midnight closing hour.

It is, of course, a physical impossibility to digest the wealth of detail embodied in so vast a canvas in a cursory hour or two. With the aid of opera glasses for the distant perspectives, there is enough subject matter here for intensive study to occupy one's interested attention for a week. And then, I dare say, you would not have seen it all!

It seemed to me Monday night that in three points, particularly, the artists had so perfected their perspectives as to create an almost complete illusion of third dimension. The first is in the rendering of the field piece that stands to the left of the American section of the canvas; another, Papa Joffre and the group of French generals standing in front of the base of the Gargantuan statue of Victory, and the third the cannon that stands before the statue on a field of flags. To these fallible eyes art becomes actuality at these three points.

Naturally, not all are speaking likenesses in the 6,000 portrait studies that form the foreground of gigantic painting, but, taken by and large, "Le Pantheon de la Guerre" deserves all of the flattering things that have been said about it.

A clever and an unusual act, with which Washington is familiar and which it has always liked, bids fair to be broken up by the good fortune that has befallen one of its members.

It is Miss Maxine Doyle, the mellifluous mistress of ceremonies at the Earle these past 80-odd weeks, who calls up to say that an airmail message from her chum, Joan Gale, the tiniest of the Gale Quadruplets, seen here first at the Earle and most recently with George White's "Scandals," at the Washington Auditorium early in the spring, brings word that Joan has just signed a five-year contract with Fox Films and will depart for the West Coast studios about the first of September.

As far as their professional careers are concerned, this will probably put a period to the fame of the Gale Quadruplets, the first bona fide act of its kind on the contemporary stage. Jane and Jean both are married, but June, it seems, will be left more or less to shift for herself.

Well, as we have remarked so many times before, life is like that!

Although Constance Bennett in "What Price Hollywood" would already have occupied the screen for nine days at RKO-Keith's, it was decided only yesterday to continue this hilarious satire on life in the film colony through another day. It has done rather better than run a dead heat with "Bring 'em Back Alive" for hot-weather attendance records. However, it will be taken off at the peak of its popularity to make way for Edmund Lowe, Evelyn Brent and Constance Cummings in "Attorney for the Defense," reputed to be another box-office wham, which will open on Fifteenth street on Saturday, just to keep the record cock-eyed!

Me, I thought for a minute yesterday I had been trapped in a tunnel, but it was only Senor Don Alfonso Zelaya, the philosophical musician, momentarily blocking the entrance to the alley next to Loew's Fox that made it seem that way! Tanned to a rich mahogany, bareheaded, collar open at the throat, his ample displacement sizzling in the afternoon sun, Don Zelaya soon barged on down F street in the general direction of the Earle, where he will appear next week on the same stage bill with Loretta Young and George Brent.

Conditions being what they are this summer, long vacation trips are out. So I have given up Hains Point and once more will have to be content with a little big game hunting in the rough country around the Tidal Basin!

HALBERT IS FAVORED TO DIRECT AID FUND

$350,000 for District Idle Will Be Available Within Two Weeks.

The Board of Public Welfare, acting upon recommendation of its special committee, yesterday proposed to the District Commissioners the appointment of L. A. Halbert, an experienced social welfare worker, as supervisor of the $350,000 fund made available for direct unemployment relief in the 1933 appropriations act.

The board also sent to the commissioners a draft of regulations to govern administration of this fund, but it was not made public.

To Hold Back for Winter.

Sidney P. Taliaferro, chairman of the special committee, said the fund would be ready for distribution within two weeks or no later than August 1. The relief, he said, will be limited to District residents. To begin with, the director and the committee will rely on the lists of needy cases compiled by reputable chairitable agencies.

George S. Wilson, director of public welfare, said that doubtless both direct charity and employment would be utilized in the administration of the fund, though this matter has not been definitely determined. Although the money will be available within two weeks, efforts will be made to hold back as much as possible until winter as it is believed greater need will then exist, according to Mr. Taliaferro.

Has Wide Experience.

Mr. Halbert, who is 58 years old and lives at 1400 Fairmont street northwest, will be paid at the rate of $4,000 a year, but on a monthly basis in view of the uncertainty of the life of the fund. Additional employes will be hired later on a per diem basis. The appropriations act limits District officials to $35,000, or 10 per cent of the relief allotment for use in its administration.

A graduate of Washburn College and the Chicago Theological Seminary, Mr. Halbert had considerable experience in welfare work before coming to Washington. In Kansas City he was at one time general superintendent of public welfare and later executive director of the Council of Social Agencies. In 1930-31 he was director of State institutions in Rhode Island. He also has taught courses in welfare work and is the author of several books.

Under the terms of the economy act, Mr. Halbert's appointment must be approved by the Commissioners, the Bureau of the Budget and President Hoover.
